The President's Plans

RECENTLY WILL ROGERS told readers of the Seattle Post Intelligencer, "There never was a time when so many fools were making money." Today he can tell them there never was a time when so many fools were losing money so rapidly.

One solemn New York banker thinks the drop in stocks "will send back to work many people who have been sitting around brokerage offices, on the trail of easy money."

Time wasted watching tickers or blackboards will doubtless be spent more usefully hereafter.

But usurious money lenders, who have been charging stock gamblers 8 to 20 per cent interest, are not the men to rebuke the gamblers.

You will hear, perhaps today, "Big bankers have stepped in and stopped the decline."

That happens after little people have been shaken out, and stocks have dropped to a fine investment basis.

Millions today sorrowfully realize that it does not pay to gamble.

President Hoover's plan for a great system of inland waterways realizes, in prospect, the hope of those that welcomed an able engineer to the White House.

Total expenditures planned will amount to $525,000,000, and every dollar spent will pay for itself 10 times over.

The President observes that the annual increase in expenditure will amount only to the cost of one-half of one battleship.

The President might have added that in modern war the whole of one battleship would be worth less than one-half of 10 cents. Since battleships are now merely targets for submarines and airplanes, worth nothing, except to battleship builders.

The Carnegie Foundation says college football is "tainted with money." Free teaching and cash bonuses are given to young men that can kick hard, run fast, and tackle savagely.

It would be more pleasing if colleges sought great teachers as eagerly as they seek out quarterbacks.

But no great harm is done. The games and great crowds arouse young men's interest in college life, and give college education to young men from rolling mills and rear ends of ice wagons that might otherwise remain uneducated.

The Swiss Parliament, elected by a moral and serious nation, proposing a law to punish blasphemy, suggests six months in prison for those that "orally or in writing insult God."

Blasphemy should be punished because it sets a bad example and shows want of respect for the feelings of others.

But is it possible for any two legged human microbe on this planet to insult God?

If the mice proposed to punish any mouse insulting Edison you would say "Mice, don't worry, you CAN'T insult Edison."

The Tribuna of Rome announces an interesting ceremony.

Italy's king and queen in full state, accompanied by Crown Prince Humbert and other princes, will visit Pope Pius in the Vatican, first visit of Italian royalty to the Pope since 1870 and the days of Garibaldi.

After an intimate meeting between the Pope and the royal family, the royal party will enter St. Peter's to render homage at the Tomb of St. Peter.

The proposed picturesque confirmation of renewed friendliness between the Italian monarchy and the Pope, arranged by Mussolini, is of great historical interest.

Poincare and Clemenceau, great Frenchmen, and old, Clemenceau is eighty-eight, amaze their doctors by quick recovery from serious illness.

"Within an inch of death" last Sunday Clemenceau is now getting up at seven in the morning to work on his important book and discuss politics with friends.

The puzzling fact for prohibition Americans is that these Frenchmen, all their lives, have drunk light French red wine, diluted with water, and never drink ice water. French doctors even tell you that red wine, containing iron, tannin and vitamines in abundance, makes good blood, which gives health and long life.

Haldane, eminent British biologist, says the Negro race in Africa will gradually die out because Negroes move to big cities. Had they remained in the country, says Haldane, they might gradually have equalled the whites in number.

But city life kills them.

5 'SIGNERS' REPUDIATE COAKLEY

Deny Placing Names on His Papers; Bolster Warns Against Disturbance

Five out of eight purported signers of Daniel H. Coakley's nomination papers for mayor denied today before the ballot law commission that the signatures were their's or had been authorized by them.

The hearing on former Mayor James M. Curley's charges that many of the Coakley signatures were fraudulent began at City Hall after a warning by Judge Bolster, presiding, that any disturbance such as yesterday would result in the hearing being terminated.

This disturbance occurred when State Senator Michael J. Ward, chief Curley lieutenant, insisted on reading a statement after being ordered not to by Judge Bolster.

POLICE REINFORCED

A sergeant of police and five new patrolmen were at the hearing today in place of the policeman who failed yesterday to arrest Ward after Judge Bolster had issued such instructions.

At 10:45 the hearing was adjourned until 2 p. m. to allow the candidates to draw for places on the ballot. An afternoon session was set from 2 to 6 and an evening session from 7:30 to 10:30.

A total of 150 witnesses have been summoned in the Coakley hearing but only eight were examined in the morning session, with Coakley doing the examining.

One witness today, Mrs. Lucy

Ex-Cabinet Officer Slumps in Chair as Jury Reports; Mercy Recommended

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—Owen J. Roberts, special government counsel in the oil scandal cases, announced today that the government would move to bring E. L. Doheny to trial on a charge of giving a bribe of $100,000 to A. B. Fall soon after the first of the year.

Washington, Oct. 25. Former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall was found guilty today of having accepted a $100,000 bribe from E. L. Doheny, California oil baron, in exchange for an invaluable lease on the naval oil reserves.

It took the jury 23 hours and 50 minutes to reach its verdict. The jury recommended mercy.

Eight men and four women composed the jury which convicted the 68-year-old man, now broken in health, of guilt in this connection while serving as Secretary of the Interior in the Harding cabinet.

The verdict was handed down nearly eight years after Fall received the money from Doheny, a friend of prospecting days when they and the West were young.

FIRST OIL VICTORY

The case was the first criminal action won by the government in those growing out of the celebrated Senate oil investigations. The government has recovered the leases, but Fall, once branded by

Stock Furor Hits Wall Street Crowd

PRICES EASIER AFTER GOOD GAINS MADE IN FIRST HALF HOUR

New York, Oct. 25—Unconfirmed rumors were circulated in Wall Street today that the banking leaders yesterday had raised a billion-dollar fund to support the stock market. National banks and trust companies are not allowed to buy stocks for their own account. They can, however, lend money to investment bankers for stock buying.

New York, Oct. 25—Responding to the cheerful views of leaders of American business as well as to the active buying of stocks by the bankers and bargain-hunters, industrial stocks which have been under a tornado of frenzied selling pressure climbed to slightly higher prices in early trading today.

Prices of leading industrials became mixed as trading progressed, numerous favorites showing a shrinkage from opening values.

An air of confidence prevailed "behind the scenes." America's financial giants indicated their belief that the situation was well in hand, that the danger of a threatened debacle had passed.

Announcement was made that officials of the stock exchange were not contemplating closing the market tomorrow in order to permit of a readjustment of abnormal conditions. The issue was being met. There was no talk of a "crisis."

Facing an enormous task in handling the avalanche of buying and selling orders which again poured into the market, brokers fought their way around the floor of the big board.

Before the end of the first hour the tickers were hopelessly behind and quotations were rushed out over emergency wires. Transactions in the first half-hour totaled 1,220,000 shares, anly 30 per cent below yesterday's record-breaking session, and prices at the end of the first hour were generally about $2 higher than at Thursday's close.

Encouragement was given by the chereful forecasts of the heads of the American steel industry attending the Steel Institute meeting. The weekly brokers' loan statement showed a reduction of $167,000,000 in the face of $250,000,000 new stock financing of important corporations.

Quotes of the leading industrial shares were decidedly mixed as trading progressed, many of the trading favorites showing a shrinkage from opening values.

In early dealings Canadian Pacific jumped $12.62 and A. M. Byers skyrocketed up $79. National Cash Register, American Power & Light and Eastman Kodak gained $4 to $5, such issues as American Telephone and U. S. Steel opened about $1 higher.

A few weak spots were uncovered, with Fox Film dropping $6 and First National Stores $4.50.

Feverish activity prevailed in Wall Street despite the fact that the staffs in practically all the stock houses had worked the greater part of the night, and were laboring under the heavy strain of lack of sleep and tense excitement.

Yesterday's grueling ordeal was almost too much for human endurance. Sightseers in the financial district grew in numbers as the day went on. The renewed market stability brought cheer everywhere.

The early improvement in prices in the general list of stocks was fairly well sustained, despite the fact that a considerable volume of liquidation hanging over from yesterday had to be absorbed.

Fresh buying and the reassuring statements of America's most powerful banking interests that "basic conditions are sound" were the factors that contributed to the initial support of the market.

An undercurrent of excitement pervaded the Stock Exchange and the financial district. The brokers were at the trading posts long before the gong rang at 10 a. m. to start business for the day.

Huge crowds surged back and forth in the streets outside. Spectators were not permitted to enter

MOTHER LOSES HOPE FOR FLIER

New York, Oct. 25 (AP) The name of Urban F. Diteman Jr. was generally believed today to have been added to the roll of those who tried to fly across the Atlantic and failed.

Unsighted and unheard from since he headed his midget monoplane, Golden Hind, out to sea from Harbor Grace, N. F., on Tuesday for London, all but the most hopeful were convinced that his adventuresome project had ended with a forced landing in a stormy sea.

His 70-year-old mother at Portland, Ore., has become resigned to the belief that her son is dead. His father also, prior to leaving for Billings to comfort his daughter-in-law and her two children, said he was convinced his son was lost.

"Why I Should Be Elected"—Coakley

By DANIEL H. COAKLEY

I thank the Boston Evening American for giving me space to explain some of the matters involving the mayoralty of our city.

In the first place, I wish it distinctly understood that if the people of Boston do not desire me to act as their Mayor, all the reasons that I may give will have no bearing on the question.

On the other hand, if the people of Boston decide that, of the three candidates now running for Mayor, I am the one who will render them the best service, then no other reason need be given. It all depends upon what the people of Boston have to say about it.

In order that the people may be able to make a decision that is fair to me and my candidacy, I shall outline a few reasons that may assist them in reaching that decision.

This is a three-man contest—probably the only time in the history of Boston when three men contended for the mayoralty.

There are enough people who read the Boston Evening American to elect any one of these three candidates, if they all should reach the same decision and supported the one candidate.

Two matters, that I consider to be of tremendous importance, are the transportation problem and the question of abolishing the Schoolhouse Commission. As I am the only candidate of the three who

$73,000 GRAFT IN BANK CASE

New York, Oct. 25 (AP) Gustave DeMarco, who testified yesterday he had taken $10,000 from the late Francesco M. Ferrari, president of the defunct City Trust Company, to Frank H. Warder, resigned banking superintendent, said today that he had delivered an additional $63,000 from the banker to Warder.

Warder is on trial, charged with bribery in connection with neglect of State examinations of the Ferrari banks.

Two Inches of Snow Hits Adirondacks

Tupper Lake, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP) Two inches of wet snow covered this section of the Adirondacks this morning, bringing joy to the hunter and sorrow to the poor.

Fire wardens shared the hunters' feelings, for the blanket of snow smothered what was considered the season's final forest fire menace.

Seaton, appeared with an infant in her arms.

"I am willing, Mr. Chairman," said Coakley to Judge Bolster, "for the sake of letting the baby get home early, to admit this woman did not sign my papers."

SAYS SHE SIGNED.

"Do you admit that it was fraudulent?" asked Atty. Lawler.

"Oh, no. I simply concede no signature in order that the baby may be taken home."

The woman, however, then spoke up and said she had signed the papers and that, with his consent, she also had signed for her husband, who can neither read nor write.

The other two signatures admitted were those of Salvatore Barbagalo of Chambers st., and his wife, of the same address.

Those who denied their signatures were Dora Grayson of North Russell st., Edward Conway of I st., South Boston; Lena M. Rosa of Holman st., Dorchester; Marie G. Desmond of Havre st., East Boston, and Philip F. McCluskey of Minot st., Ashmont.

FIRST ON BALLOT

In the drawing for places on the ballot during recess, first place went to Coakley, second place to Mansfield and last place for Curley.

FALL GUILTY IN OIL BRIBERY

the Supreme Court as a "faithless public servant," is the first person connected with the leases to be convicted.

During the trial Fall has appeared in court most of the time in a wheel chair and on one occasion a recess had to be taken because of his condition.

The four women and eight men on the jury stood as they announced their verdicts individually. One by one as they were polled each replied:

"Guilty, with mercy of the court."

FALL SLUMPS AT VERDICT

"Ladies and gentlemen," asked the court, "have you reached a verdict?" "Yes," was the reply.

"What is your verdict?" asked the court.

"Guilty," replied Foreman Thomas E. Norris.

Mrs. Fall and her daughters, Mrs. C. C. Chase and Mrs. Jouett Elliott, leaned forward in their seats and wept.

Their daughter, Mrs. C. C. Chase, broke down and sobbed hysterically as the realization that her father was convicted dawned upon her.

DOHENY UNMOVED

Mrs. Doheny sat with dry eyes. She slowly fanned herself.

Her husband sat next to Fall with little apparent motion. He clapped his hand over his ear as the court reviewed the case.

The courtroom was crowded to its capacity.

Defense counsel served notice immediately of a motion for new trial.

It was the third criminal charge Fall has faced as a result of his oil leasing policies. One charge, that of conspiring with Harry F. Sinclair, now in jail on conviction of contempt of court and of the Senate, still awaits trial.

VERDICT A SURPRISE

The Sinclair-Fall charge was that of conspiracy to defraud the Government of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve. It was brought to trial in 1927, but resulted in a mistrial when Burns detectives, hired by Sinclair, were found shadowing the jury.

Subsequently Sinclair stood trial alone and was acquitted, and because of this it has been expected the charge against Fall would be dismissed.

The other charge against Fall was that of conspiring with Doheny to defraud in the Elk Hills lease. Both were acquitted.

Tries to End His Life by Inhaling Gas From Tubing

Attempting suicide today by inhaling illuminating gas, John DeNoose, 22 and single of Union Park st., South End, is in City Hospital with slight chance of recovery.

The youth lived with his mother and father, both of whom were away at the time. Fixing a rubber tube to a gas bracket and placing the other end in his mouth, he lay down in the bathtub to inhale the gas.

The gas seeped to an adjoining apartment occupied by Mark Hawes. He traced its source and discovered DeNoose unconscious. No reason is known for his act.

SIX NEAR DEATH IN WILD CHASE

Five members of police headquarters flying squadron narrowly escaped injury early today and a stolen car was wrecked, during a vain chase for the thief through South Boston streets.

In the police car were Lieut. Stephen J. Gillis, in charge of the squadron, and Patrolmen Keating, Bonning, Manning and Horrow.

In Dorchester ave. the cruising policemen sighted a car that had been reported stolen from John Scherr of York ter., Brookline. As they drew up, the stolen car's driver put on speed, and with the cars racing at 60 miles an hour, the thief swerved, driving the police car to the sidewalk.

However, Patrolman Keating skilfully maneuvered the car back on the road and resumed the chase until Mt. Vernon st. was reached, when the fugitive car crashed into a fence.

The thief escaped, but the policemen believe he was injured.

Malden Filing Time Ends at 5 P. M. Today

The time for filing nomination papers for the Malden municipal primaries of Nov. 13, expires at 5 p. m. tonight, with practically all papers in.

There are four candidates for mayor, headed by the incumbent, John D. Devir, who seeks a sixth term. Opposing him are William A. Hastings, who held the office 25 years ago, Austin H. Roby and Ernest S. Butler.

Six candidates for four nominations for school committee are Harold S. Harding, local newspaperman; William M. Bailey, William W. Hall, Jr., Charles W. Hill, Barney Kaplan and Paul M. Foss.

BUSINESS GOOD, SAYS SCHWAB

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Stabilization of profits was upheld by Charles M. Schwab today in an address before the American Iron & Steel Institute, of which he is president.

He said he saw no reason why the present prosperity of the industry should not continue indefinitely if the equilibrium between production and consumption was maintained.

He declared it was as ethical and necessary for the steel industry to think in terms of stabilized profits as to strive for stability in other respects. "It is high time," he said, "we scrapped the idea that the steel business must be either a prince or a pauper."

He estimated production for 1929 would exceed 57,000,000 tons, 10 per cent greater than in 1928, the best previous year, but said even more important than this was the degree of stability attained.

"This fundamentally sound condition," he said, "is largely responsible for the uniform prosperity which has been shared by all branches and all companies in the industry. It is significant that the industry's favorable showing has not been due to high prices."

He attributed the improved earnings to three factors, greater demand for steel, enlarged output and lower costs.

While at present, he said, there is a slight let-up in demand, he declared it would be unfortunate to let any slight fluctuations in demand disturb the healthy balance that has been established. He pointed out that a falling off in demand would be bound to result in an increase in costs, in which event a stabilized price structure would be needed more than ever.

"I am a firm believer," he said, "that one of the best ways of assuring progress on an even keel is to let the cost sheet be our compass. The cost sheet will tell us whether productive capacity in any branch of the business is in excess of current requirements.

"It will reveal uneconomic and obsolete practices. It will forestall an unsound price structure. It will discourage the attempt to produce to capacity all the time, regardless of demand."

He urged discarding of the idea that costs were not important in determining sales policies because the latter are fixed by competitive prices.

"The fact is," he said, "that competitive prices frequently fail to yield a proper return because they do not give adequate consideration to costs."

SEES HITCH IN NEW HIGHWAY REGULATION

Brookline Chief Puzzled as to How Rules Apply to Beacon Street

Instructing his police officers not to interfere with traffic on Beacon st., Brookline, Chief of Police Allen Rutherford today planned to consult officials of the Public Works Department concerning the new automobile regulations which he said were unfair to persons operating on one-way streets.

The ruling on passing, which states "except when passing another car automobiles must operate to the right of the center of the road," Chief Rutherford points out would give a road hope a chance to create serious traffic tangles on Beacon st., where four car lanes are now permitted.

"I think the one-way streets have escaped the attention of the Public Works officials. Beacon st., where four automobiles are permitted to run abreast, would be practically useless in speeding up traffic.

"I am going to the officials today and take the matter up with them. In the meantime I have instructed my officers not to interfere with persons operating on the extreme left side of either of the Beacon st. roadways."

Chief Rutherford's attitude was not defiant. He believes a mistake has been made and that the matter of wide one-way streets will be settled in a manner that will be satisfactory to everyone.

$15,000 in Good Liquor, Rare Jewels Recovered; Two Lynn Men Jailed

With thousands of dollars' worth of liquor, silverware and other valuables packed up ready to remove, two Lynn young men, said by the police to have records, were captured in the Hamilton summer home of Mrs. George von L. Meyer today.

The arrests were made by Chief of Police Arthur Southwick and seven officers of the Hamilton department, summoned by Allan Bond, the caretaker.

The prisoners were booked as Sidney Stevens of Blakely st., and Frank Currier of Central ave., both Lynn, and were later arraigned in Salem court on charges of breaking and entering in the nighttime.

FAMILIAR WITH HOUSE

According to the police the burglars parked a big sedan near the house, and covered their natty clothing with overalls and jumpers before forcing an entrance.

Mrs. von L. Meyer, widow of the former Secretary of the Navy, is on her way to Rome with her daughter, and the big house was closed up, with a caretaker living on the grounds.

Police say the thieves were familiar with conditions, because they carefully avoided burglar alarms and removed panels from locked doors in going from room to room.

The estate is located on Main st., Hamilton, in the midst of extensive grounds in a more or less lonely section of the town at this time of year.

GOT $15,000 RUM FIRST

No one noticed the sedan when it drove up and parked near the house, and the burglars donned their working clothes unmolested.

Making their way into the residence they forced a cellar window, and first collected some $15,000 worth of choice pre-war liquor, which was carried upstairs.

The men then went through the big house, packing up bric-a-brac, silverware and other articles, and were nearly finished when Bond, who lives in a lodge on the estate, learned of their presence.

He telephoned the police and Chief Southwick and his men responded, surrounding the house.

The men started to leave the building but discovered the police and retreated inside. The chief and his men then entered and captured the burglars, who were unarmed.

K. O. Jab Ends Third Battle of Lawyers

Boston lawyers continue not only to fight legally in court for their clients, but also physically on the outside.

The third fist fight between Boston lawyers in the corridors of Pemberton sq. courthouse within a week occurred today when a former district attorney of a nearby county knocked another leading Boston attorney down with a right to the jaw.

Those who saw the scrap said the attorneys engaged in a red-hot argument as to the merits of their side of the case they had been trying, when the former district attorney was hit by his opponent. The ex-prosecutor quickly ended the battle with a wallop to the jaw of the other lawyer that would have been worthy of Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney, according to spectators.

A warrant is now in the hands of the police for another attorney, who is alleged to have broken the nose of a man in the corridor outside the Suffolk County Probate Court.

Two other attorneys had a rough and tumble fight on the third floor of the courthouse a few days ago, during the course of which they rolled around on the stone floor.

the exchange gallery to view the scene on the floor. Mounted police patrolled the narrow thoroughfares in the vicinity of the exchange. There was no disorder.

Brokers milled excitedly around the semi-circular trading posts, shouting their bids and offers. White numbers clicked intermittently on two big blackboards on each side of the high ceilinged exchange, summoning the brokers to telephones or to their offices. Each broker has an individual number.

Lights flashed continuously in the switchboards of the brokerage houses in "the street." Orders to "buy" and "sell" were pouring in. The facilities of the houses were taxed to the utmost.

Messenger boys skipped about, keyed up and alert. Newsboys shouted "extras" in the streets. Small investors who couldn't get their brokerage offices by telephone visited the district personally, enlargin the crowds.

All morning big sightseeing buses rolled down to Wall and Broad sts., bringing out-of-town visitors to the scene.

Subscriptions amounting to $51,098.67 in the Salvation Army's drive for $250,000 were announced at noon today, exactly three days after the Greater Boston appeal was issued.

Members of the advisory board met with chairman and representatives of the various committee at the Chamber of Commerce and received with enthusiasm the report made by Chairman Philip R. Allen.

Col. Joseph Atkinson, commanding officer of the Army, expressed gratification at the response to the appeal and pointed out that this year's campaign is critical, as continued service of the 24 departments serving Boston depended upon its success.

"This is an extraordinary appeal and we must make sure that everyone understands the need for increased support," said W. A. Nicol, campaign director.

SEVEN HELD IN KIDNAPING

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 25 (AP)—Seven persons were in custody today in connection with the kidnaping of five-year-old Jackie Thompson and police were searching the city for two others suspected of participating in the plot. The child was discovered in an East Side house Wednesday night by police shortly after the father, Henry S. Thompson, had paid a ransom reported to have been $25,000. Only part of the $25,000 ransom paid by Thompson has been recovered, police said.

POLICE IN ROW OVER 2 RUM PRISONERS

Lynn Officers Get the Men, but Saugus Holds on to the Liquor

Milling in a driveway in the chill of dawn while two alleged rum-runners looked on, Lynn and Saugus police quarreled strenuously today over possession of the prisoners, a liquor loaded automobile and truck.

When the war of words, that nearly became a war of fisticuffs, was over, Lynn police had the two prisoners and the car and Saugus police had the truck, containing 1292 quarts of choice liquors just landed in Pines River.

The difficulties arose over the fact that the dividing line between the two communities runs through Atherton st., where the quarrel took place. Both sets of policemen had gone to the spot in response to telephone information.

When Patrolmen MacDougall, Joyce and Wheaton of Saugus arrived they found Sergt. John Hines and Patrolmen Gillespie and Connolly there.

Under arrest on the Lynn side were Joseph Samano of Somerville and Gene Kelly of Chelsea, charged with transporting and selling liquor.

On the Saugus side was the liquor-laden truck alleged to be registered to Kelly. Several other automobiles had escaped, and at one the Lynn officers had fired shots.

The quarrel began when Officer Joyce of Saugus announced the truck belonged to Saugus. Officer Gillespie of Lynn took up the challenge and offered to put Joyce out of the driveway. Joyce moved to repel boarders, but just then Sergt. Hines stepped into the wordy battle, awarding the truck to Saugus and the prisoners and automobile to Lynn.

Seek Citizens' Aid to Regulate Traffic

Following receipt of the circular letter sent to all police heads in Massachusetts by Registrar of Motor Vehicles George A. Parker, Chief James M. Travers of the Milton police, started a campaign against reckless driving.

A feature of the campaign is the chief's request that Milton residents co-operate with the police in making Milton as free of accidents as any other city or town in the State, and all residents will be asked to turn in the numbers of cars they observe disregarding traffic regulations.

Riviera Towns Want More Casino Cash

Nice, Oct. 25—Sundry town fathers along the Riviera are kicking about the rakeoff from Baccarat. They want a percentage of Casinos' winnings instead of a fixed sum per game.

The Republic now gets 11 per cent of winnings; the municipalities receive sums ranging from $8 up from the banker's roll when he wins.

STATE SAFETY DRIVE TO CLEAR ROADS OF WILD AUTOISTS

BIG LIST OF ARRESTS IS EXPECTED

Revised Traffic Laws Go Into Effect in State Tomorrow

With 1000 operators' licenses already revoked or suspended since the newest safety campaign of Gov. Allen went into effect the first of the week, indications today pointed to double that number being summarily called in before the close of the drive tomorrow.

In connection with the drive, eight officers of the Somerville police department were put on extra day duty today to watch for violations.

Before the Somerville board of aldermen adjourned its meeting they voted to investigate the causes of auto accidents in their city. It was revealed that in the last 30 days there have been 176 accidents, of which five were fatal.

In addition, overcrowded court dockets were assured in early reports from State Constabulary and Motor Registry officials as a result of the activities of troopers and highway inspectors on all the main arteries of the state.

According to Capt. Charles T. Beaupre, executive officer of the constabulary, his force had gathered in thousands of motorists adjudged as either careless, thoughtless or reckless.

Tomorrow when the revised traffic laws of the state go into effect the list of arrests is expected to take a big bound upward.

A conference of four lieutenants and four traffic sergeants of the State police has been called for today by Captain Beaupre, to make plans for the rigid enforcement of the new highway safety rules adopted by the department of public works and approved by the governor and council Wednesday.

This will follow a conference of Commissioner Frank Lyman of the department of public works, Registrar Parker, Captain Beaupre and Professor Miller S. McClintock, who helped frame the new regulations.

SEEKS ASTOR'S TESTIMONY

New York, Oct. 25—Samuel C. Coleman, an assistant to U. S. Atty. Charles H. Tuttle, sailed for Europe today to take the testimony of Lord Astor, Maj. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. H. Spender-Clay and other witnesses who cannot attend the forthcoming trial of the William Waldorf Astor Trust estate's suit to recover $16,000,000 from the United States government.

The suit is based on the government's $11,000,000 inheritance tax assessment against the trust estate at the time of Baron Astor's death in 1919. The Farmers Loan & Trust Company, as trustee, is asking for an additional $5,000,000 interest, bringing the total up to $16,000,000.

B. U. Teacher Victim of Hit-Run Driver

Officials at Boston University's college of liberal arts are extending sympathies to Miss Helen M. Stevens, supervisor in the chemical laboratory at the college, who was recently injured by a "hit and run" driver in Needham.

The Boston University instructor was knocked unconscious by the machine. Regaining consciousness, Miss Stevens was able to reach the Needham home of Benjamin D. May, Boston school master, where she was attended by Dr. J. Braden Thompson of Needham.

Robinson Raps His Kin, Gov. Roosevelt

Cooperstown, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—Theodore Douglas Robinson, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, in an address here, said he was "startled at the horrible results of the direct primary." Continuing, Robinson, who is related to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, said that "blood is thick, but my Republicanism is thicker, and I hope our party can defeat Governor Roosevelt if he runs again."

30,000 Persons See $4,000,000 Bridge Over Mt. Hope Bay Officially Opened to Traffic

Miss Rita Barbara Callan Miss Nancy Weaver Thompson

The honor of cutting the white ribbon was bestowed on Miss Rita Barbara Callan of Bristol, R. I., and Miss Nancy Weaver Thompson of Newport, R. I. (Staff photos.)

Towering above is the new $4,000,000 bridge, the seventh largest suspension bridge in the world. Anchored on the other side of the bridge is the U. S. S. Dallas, which took part in the dedication.

35 RUSSIANS EXECUTED FOR PLOTS

Rostov-on-Don, U. S. S. R., Oct. 25 (AP) Fourteen Russians, including two former high officers of the army, and three property owners, were executed today on charges of maintaining an armed monarchial counter-revolutionary organization un underground quarters in the North Caucasus Mountains.

A large number of others identified with the organization were sent at the same time to concentration prison camps under sentences of hard labor for from five to 10 years.

Authorities said the members formed themselves into a militant czarist organization which operated under the guise of a religious sect named "Imyaslavtzi," which purchased arms, stored ammunition and sent emissaries and propagandists to Black Sea towns to agitaate against the Red army and Soviet economic and political plans.

It was charged that Col. Paul Grigorovitch, a former Czarist officer, formed a military council of 12.

Krasnodar, Russia, Oct. 25 (AP) Twenty-one men, described as bandits and counter-revolutionists, were executed here today for subversive activities against the government, robbing the countryside and terrorizing the population.

It was alleged the organization, headed by a man named Savitsky maintained a plant for forging documents and possessed arms and ammunition and that just before arrest they were recruiting additional members to extend terroristic activitie.

Several additional defendants were sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment.

Clemenceau Unable to Take Solid Food

Paris, Oct. 25 (AP) Despite assurances of Georges Clemenceau's apparent improvement, the impression remained in well-informed circles today that he gradually was growing weaker because of his inability to take any solid food.

This, combined with his failure to assimilate any medicine, makes the possibility of any new cardiac attack a grave event that might easily end fatall.

Invents New Paper; Won't Tear or Burn

Berlin, Oct. 25—Paper which, it is claimed, cannot be torn and will not burn has been devised by a chemist named Schoop. Pulp is coated with liquid metal.

BODIES IN LIFE BELTS MARK GRAVE OF 54

Milwaukee, Oct. 25 (AP) A dozen bodies marked today the resting place of a Lake Michigan steamer and revealed the fate of her crew of 54.

Each incased in a lifebelt, they floated among wreckage from their ill-fated ship, the Grand Trunk car ferry Milwaukee, on the lake 16 miles southeast of Kenosha, Wis.

A half dozen boats were detailed to the scene to complete salvage work today. Searchers have recovered seven bodies and bits of wreckage which told how the Milwaukee plunged to the bottom when she was unable to breast the battering waves Tuesday night.

The United States steamboat inspection service, through Capt. William A. Collins of Milwaukee, wants to know if the sinking was due to negligence of those who ordered the ship to clear port in the face of storm warnings, and has started an inquiry.

Phones to Direct Portland Police

Portland, Me., Oct. 25 To protect the outlying districts and to make it possible at the same time to shift men about quickly and without any delay, telephones are to be placed in traffic booths in this city shortly.

City Manager James E. Barlow, who believes the plan will work out well, would provide each booth officer with a light car, parked near at hand, which he could use to effect in the event of an emergency.

Boy Who Slew Widow Loses Loot at Dice

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—A 12-year-old boy was held on a charge of homicide today for strangling a 76-year-old widow who detected him stealing $3 from her dresser.

Three hours after Edward had taken the money he had lost $2.50 of it in a game of dice and had spent the remaining 50 cents for candy.

Mrs. Clara Hewes, bed-ridden widow of Hewes the Magician, awoke just as Edward Moran, the janitor's son in the West 17th st. apartment in which she lived, was leaving.

"Edward," the boy quoted her as saying, "you put that back where you got it."

"So," said Edward in his confession to the police, "we got to wranglin' and she tried to take the money away from me. But I got my hands around her neck and gave her a shove, and she fell right back on the bed. She was so still I got scared. I then threw a brick through the transom window to make everybody think it was robbers, and went back to school."

Although Mrs. Hewes lived on charity and small sums she obtained by telling fortunes, she was found to have $15,000 in savings accounts of four banks.

Publisher's Wife Dies

2 FACE DEATH IN JEW KILLING

Jerusalem, Oct. 2 (AP) Sentence of two years' imprisonment and fines of £50, plus trial costs, was passed on Sheik Taleb Markan after conviction in Jerusalem court on charges of instigating the recent Semitic Moslem disorders in Hebron.

Sixty Jews were killed in the disturbances and scores injured. The trial, which began October 1, was considered the key case in those growing out of the outbreaks.

At Haifa Ahmed Echariffa and Ahmed Selm Zanib were sentenced to death by Chief Justice Sir Michael MacDonnalle, sitting with Judge Litt, for the death of Hannah Kohen, wife of Raphael Kohen, during the outbreak in Safed August 28. Two other Arabs found guilty of complicity in the murder were sentenced to prison for 10 years.

Steal Silk Hosiery

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 25. Burglars, neglecting to touch costly fur coats, stole dresses and silk stockings, valued at $500, from the Fashion Shoppe, situated on Congress st., in the heart of the business section.

$100,000 Loss in Hingham Fire

The summer home of Mrs. Ezra R. Thayer at Hingham was completely destroyed, with all its furnishings, in a fire of mysterious origin. The loss will reach $100,000, it is said. By the time the apparatus arrived, the house was a mass of flames and little could be done to save the structure. From its high elevation, the fire was visible for miles and attracted hundreds of motorists, causing a severe traffic jam on the Cohasset highway. The house was unoccupied, the family having returned to the city.

URGES PRISON SENTENCE FOR PANTAGES

Los Angeles, Oct. 25. The taking of testimony was completed with the abruptness that has characterized many of the sudden moves in the assault trial of Alexander Pantages, theater magnate.

A jury of seven women and five men is to determine whether the 54-year-old multi-millionaire is to be acquitted or subjected to a prison sentence of one to 50 years, for alleged assault on Eunice Pringle, dancer.

Asst. Prosecutor Robert P. Stewart opened the resume of the State's case, in which he told the jurors there "is but one issue, did or did not Alexander Pantages commit a statutory offense upon Eunice Pringle?"

He reviewed briefly the testimony of "that imposing array of witnesses whose statements you will weigh against that of this defendant here, who attempts to suppress facts and obtain false testimony."

Stewart asked the jury to send Pantages to prison and implored the talesmen not to return a county jail sentence as they are privileged to do. "We would rather that you set him free than do that," Stewart said.

Illness of another juror interrupted the trial when Mrs. Lottie Steiner declared that she was too indisposed to continue longer in the box.

HUNT FIREBUG IN HINGHAM

Swelling the number of fires of incendiary origin which have occured in Hingham during the past few weeks, a blaze of serious proportions broke out in a large barn on Main st., Hingham Center.

The barn is the property of Mrs. Starkes Whiting who rents it to Harry Cross, keeper of a large greenhouse. Cross stores much of his floral equipment in the barn.

Neighbors saw flames shooting from the rear of the structure and notified the fire department.

As the state is constructing a road on Main st. in front of the barn, the fire department experienced difficulty in reaching the scene.

The blaze was confined to the rear of the barn, which was gutted, and a large portion of the roof. Damage was estimated at $200. Fire Chief Albert Brown investigated and said he believed origin to be incendiary. He notified the police.

Salem Man Held as Drunken Driver

George Mahoney, 31, of May st., Salem, was arrested by Lynn police and charged with drunkenness and operating under the influence of liquor, after an automobile operated by him had crashed head-on with a street car at Chatham and Collins sts., Lynn.

The automobile, after the collision, hit a stone wall and rebounded for a second collision with the trolley car, causing a near panic among passengers. Mahoney was taken to Lynn Hospital, and was then arrested, after it was found that he was uninjured.

Was Ill 2 Years

Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, mother of Mrs. Coolidge, who died in Northampton after an illness of two years. She was 80 years of age.

NATION MOURNS DEATH OF MRS. GOODHUE

Northampton, Oct. 25—Five years ago a proud, gray-haired mother journeyed from this to Washington to see her son-in-law inaugurated President of the United States. Today the nation is mourning the death of Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, mother of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

The end came peacefully at Cooley-Dickinson Hospital, where Mrs. Goodhue had waged a two-years' fight against the ravages of influenza, coupled with the infirmities of age. She was in her 80th year.

Mrs. Coolidge, former first lady of the land and devoted daughter, was at her mother's bedside when she passed into her last sleep. Mr. Coolidge also had spent some time at the hospital earlier, when physicians announced the end was near.

MANY CONDOLENCES.

Messages of condolence from all parts of the country and abroad poured in on the bereaved at the Coolidge home on Massasoit st. soon after the death of Mrs. Goodhue was announced.

Mrs. Goodhue had been a patient at the hospital here since December 11, 1927, when she suffered an attack of influenza. Several times Mrs. Coolidge hurried from the White House to her mother's bedside, but the aged patient rallied each time.

Not a day passed since their return to Northampton and to private life that Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge did not visit the hospital and spend some time with the patient. Every day saw the familiar figure of Grace Coolidge enter the hospital carrying a box of flowers to brighten her mother's room.

HUSBAND DIED IN 1923.

Mrs. Goodhue was the widow of Capt. Andrew Goodhue, a Lake Champlain steamboat inspector, and for many years lived in Burlington, Vt. She was born in Nashua, N. H. Following her husband's death in 1923 she moved to Northampton to live in the Coolidge home.

She was a regular attendant at the Edwards Congregational Church and before her illness she walked the distance of a mile from her home each Sunday. Daily she was seen walking with her pet Boston terrier "Beans," a gift from the White House.

Grace Coolidge, wife of the former President, was the only child. A sister, Mrs. John H. Hazel of West Roxbury, and a grandson, John Coolidge of Hartford, Ct., also survive.

Plans for the funeral were under way today. In accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Coolidge, it will be a simple one.

IMPOSTOR SELLS LINDY STORY

New York, Oct. 25.—A "ghost writer" for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh waited until the famous flier was off on his 20-day trip into the South and then palmed off a fake manuscript in Lindbergh's name on the Philadelphia publishing house of Dorrance & Co.

Revelation by Lindbergh that he has not written another book and has no intention of doing so, however, has resulted in a search for the "ghost," who will receive nothing but a lot of experience for his pains in preparing his manuscript.

The man represented himself as Donald Kehoe, a former associate, and author of "Flying With Lindbergh." His deception worked until Lindbergh returned with his bride from his southern trip and was questioned by George Putnam of New York, who published Lindbergh's book "We."

Lindbergh answered that he had not changed publishers and had not, in fact, written anything.

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Mayor Gustav Boess of Berlin sailed for home today on the North German Lloyd liner Bremen after a month's visit in the United States.

Bull Fighter Fights for Woman Admirer

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Oct. 25 (AP)—The fate of Mexico City's bullfighting season hung in the balance while immigration authorities debated with Joaquin Rodriguez, famous Spanish bull fighter, regarding the status of a young woman admirer who had stowed away on the liner Alfonso XIII as the vessel left Spain.

The Mexican authorities at first refused to allow her to land, whereupon Rodriguez refused to quit the ship. Ricardo Gonzales, another bull ring star, as well as the picadors and banderilleros who accompanied the matadors also voted to remain aboard.

The immigration authorities, possibly realizing the adverse effect on the season without Rodriguez, finally agreed to let the young woman come ashore as a tourist.

It was said here she had followed Rodriguez from one bull ring to another in Spain and made her appearance on the vessel when it was some distance out from Europe. She had neither money nor passports, but her bull-fighting hero, who had not previously been acquainted with her, volunteered to pay for her passage.

Nab 12,000 'Drunks' in 10 Months in Capital

Washington, Oct. 24. More than 12,000 arrests for drunkenness have been made here since Jan. 1, 1929, records kept by the police court revealed.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, there were 10,869 arrests. The following year the total was 12,091.

Close to 14,000 arrests were made during the 12 months ended last June 30. With more than two months of the present calendar year to go—and they the holiday months—it was believed a new record would be established.

Judge Gus A. Schuldt, presiding magistrate of police court, estimated 40 per cent of the persons whose names are found on the records are "repeaters."

PRIEST AMAZED AT CAVEMAN'S WOODCRAFT

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Copyright, 1929, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Normandin, Quebec, Oct. 25—After a visit of inspection to the lonely camp of Burt McConnell, "cave man," the Rev. Fr. J. Henri Tremblay, curate of the St. Thomas Dydime parish, arrived here with high praise for the New York editor's experiment in the Quebec wilderness.

Fr. Tremblay was one of a special committee of three which visited McConnell after the second week of his experiment to make certain that he was living up to the regulations specified. Fr. Tremblay talked with the adventurer for three hours and inspected his quarters.

"McConnell seemed to me pretty well in his small camp," said the priest. "And rather comfortable, too. In front of the rude shack a fire burns continually. I confess I did not find McConnell suffering too much from the cold or the effects of wild life.

MUST CONSERVE FOOD

"He takes one or two meals a day. For all of his food he has rabbits and squirrels. These he must eat sparingly because he is never sure when he will get another meal.

"He did not seem to feel lonesome very much, notwithstanding he thinks and speaks of his family and of his New York. He told me that he hoped to succeed. The weather is very fine, which is so much the better for his experiment. It should not fail, considering all the sacrifices McConnell has made."

Father Tremblay was accompanied on the trip by Mayor Perrault of the St. Thomas Dydime parish and District Forrester McKibbin, who represents Chief Forrester Piche at Quebec. Before McConnell went into the woods to begin his experiment he consulted with this committee and agreed to live up to certain rules and regulations.

These included the provision that he must hunt for his own food with his own improvised weapons, make his own fires, clothes and other necessities—as well as building his own home.

SKILL SURPRISING

"We looked critically at everything," said Father Tremblay. "I was surprised to note with what efficiency and excellence a man from such an urban center as New York city should make for himself weapons and utensils to help him in the wilderness."

Then the priest described in detail the bow and arrow, fish hooks and a half-finished Eskimo fish-spear, with which McConnell hopes to catch fish. He told of the bone awls McConnell made for sewing his clothes—of his winter coat, which is now being tanned—his moccasins, an unfinished moose-hide shirt, a calendar and the shelter he built.

"He looked very much thinner than when I saw him before he began the experiment," said Father Tremblay. "His face was covered with a beard, his eyes somewhat deeper in his head, yet he had a great amount of energy and enthusiasm. It was quite evident he was glad to see us, the first humans in two weeks.

"Thus far, I must say McConnell has lived up to his agreement splendidly. I am confident, too, that in his experiment civilization will triumph over the primeval—even though, now and then, this man from civilization has to go without food for a day or two."

Father Tremblay himself is a pioneer and adventurer of a sort. His parish is the last civilization outpost north from Quebec. He is a husky, athletic priest, a great man for the out-of-doors.

License of Wife of Safety Council Head Suspended

Worcester, Oct. 25—Although her husband, as president of the Worcester Safety Council, is one of the men most actively engaged in aiding the safety campaign of Governor Allen, the automobile operator's license of Mrs. Marjorie S. Morgan of Burgess rd. was suspended today.

Police were notified of the suspension for "carelessness" in connection with an automobile accident figured in by Mrs. Morgan on September 19 in Park ave.

3 INJURED IN TRUCK CRASH

Springfield, Oct. 25 (AP)—Three men were injured, one critically, when their automobile on the way to the Cobblem ountain dam, collided with a parked truck in Agawam early today. They were brought to a hospital here. The name of Amelion Grandenico was played on the danger list. He suffered internal injuries.

Anthony Larello of Boston, driver of a truck, had been driving all night and parked at the roadside to catch a few minutes' sleep. The truck was seen by Herman F. Johnson, driver of the sedan, in time to avoid a head-on crash, but one side of the car was torn away.

Johnson claimed there were no lights on the truck. Besides Grandenico, Arthur Dubento and Harry Ekinovitz were injured.

Dr. Listernick Is Everett Candidate

Dr. Sidney S. Listernick of Ferry st., Everett, has announced his candidacy for election to the Everett school board. Dr. Listernick is to run for the school committee-at-large and is to be voted for in every ward in the city.

N. E. GOVERNORS TO NAME R. R. BOARD OF 30

Steps taken by the New England Council regarding the future status of New England railroads have been reported by President Proctor to the presidents of the agricultural, commercial and industrial organizations of the six states.

These have culminated in a decision of the New England governors to create a joint committee of 30 to examine all phases of New England's transportation needs.

"The creation of this committee, according to President Proctor, is a guarantee that transportation problems will be considered on an all-New England basis; that each state and community will have equal opportunity in determining what is best in the matter of control and operation, and that each interest will have equal opportunity to express its views as to how its transportation needs may best be met.

"Our governors have made it clear," said President Proctor, "that they feel New England's transportation problems should be dealt with on an all-New England basis. This marks a great step toward the accomplishment of one of the purposes for which the council was created."

All the New England governors will attend the fifth New England conference, opening in Boston November 21, and discussion of railroad matters has been assigned for that day.

Stop Drought

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Oct. 25—After being 48 hours without water in this village the tense situation has been remedied by the installation of a pump at the intake at Stiles Pond which will deliver through a six-inch pipe 2,000,000 gallons of water every 24 hours into the three filters.

The Symphony! A Supreme Achievement!

Our Radio Department has performed brilliantly in the past—and has all indications of having an even more glorious future. Let us look back a bit to a Sales Manager's Record Day when this department ran up a stupendous sales record of $157,000 — in one day! — a magnificent record!—without equal, to the best of our knowledge, throughout the world of merchandising.

And still another feather in our cap—the remarkable sale of more than one thousand Kolster Radios in 10 days. Need we give more proof of unparalleled value-giving?

And now we have secured a Radio for this event to surpass all former records—a Radio to bring in station after station, day or night, without the slightest interference—a Radio that will reproduce the human voice or the highest musical note with life-like trueness—in short, a Radio that will make thousands of added friends on Sales Manager's Record Days — THE SYMPHONY! It is our most outstanding value both in Quality and in Price!

U. S., GERMANY NEGOTIATING REPARATION

Berlin, Oct. 25 (AP)—Reliable sources here today made known the United States State Department and the German Foreign Office have under way negotiations for a direct German-American war reparation agreement, independent of the Young plan, to which the other former allied nations probably will adhere.

The negotiations have been under way for some time. The embassy has withheld any comment, but intimated a statement would be issued shortly.

The Foreign Office denied such negotiations were progressing, and said Ambassador Schurman's conversations were not different from those of diplomats of nations adhering to the Young plan. They pertained solely to technical matters regarding the Young plan, it was added.

The United States has maintained an attitude of aloofness with regard to the Young plan since the beginning of the conference, from which is evolved America's representation on both the Paris and The Hague committees was unofficial.

The American reparations bill is small compared to those of other nations concerned, being but about $240,000,000 and covering principally claims and costs of the army of occupation.

Fitchburg Woman to Be Buried Saturday

Fitchburg, Oct. 25—The funeral of Mrs. Catherine M. Shea, widow of Maurice M. Shea, who died at the home of her nephew, William J. Garvey, aged 97, will be held Saturday morning with a high mass of requiem in St. Bernard's Church and burial in St. Bernard's Cemetery.

She was born in Ireland and had resided in this city 45 years. Previously to coming to Fitchburg she lived in New York.

U. S. Plans Sale of 16 Eagle Boats

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 25—Announcement has been made that 16 Eagle boats, which have been tied up for some time at the Navy Yard here, will be sold by the government for junk.

No date has been set by the Navy Department yet for the sale.

Theft Frame-Up

Mrs. Laura Price, wife of a millionaire manufacturer of Chicago, has confessed that the supposed holdup in which she lost $18,000 in jewels, was a frameup. Professional racketeers, four of whom are being held, forced her to take part, she says, and needing money, she agreed. (International Newsreel Photo.)

Drives Six Years on Dead Man's License

New Bedford, Oct. 25—After operating an automobile in the name of a man who has been dead for six years, Peter Martin of South Second st. was found guilty in district court of violating the auto laws and was sentenced to 60 days in the house of correction. He appealed.

Police disclosed that the man purchased a small truck from Mrs. Candide Soares, widow of Filip N. Soares, in 1924. Filip N. Soares died Oct. 27, 1923, and when the widow sold the truck she turned over her husband's license and registration. Since that time Martin has been representing himself as Soares, renewing the latter's license and obtaining registration plates in his name.

DI ROSA TELLS PLAN TO KILL MUSSOLINI

Brussels, Oct. 25—Sweeping investigation of the attempt against the life of Crown Prince Humbert, heir to the Italian throne, was being pushed today by the Belgian police. Many arrests of suspects were said to have been made.

Di Rosa, the attaker, announces he had also planned to kill Premier Mussolini.

Meanwhile the prince celebrated with Princess Marie Jose, daughter of the Belgian monarchs, the formal announcement of their betrothal. He planned to leave for Rome this evening.

Congratulations poured in on Humbert and his fiance from all over the world, while enormous crowds of Belgians and his own countrymen acclaimed him with enthusiastic cheers outside the Italian embassy and Brussels Palace.

At police headquarters silence was maintained as to steps taken in investigation of the attempted assassination, but officers were not so secretive concerning Fernando DeRosa, the assassin, however, and made public his statement.

The youth, who is but 21 years old, and was badly mauled by the crowd yesterday, said because he is a Socialist he wanted to kill the crown prince, with that idea in mind.

"I left Paris Tuesday by the Amsterdam express making Antwerp my destination in order not to be suspected by the secret service agents."

He told the judge he had for a long time contemplated killing either Premier Mussolini or a member of the Italian royal family because they had betrayed the Italian constitution.

"I am prepared to face death," he said. "I am surprised I still am alive. I certainly thought I should be killed on the spot and had no idea of escaping unhurt."

Old Fire Apparatus Purchased for Ford

Haverhill, Oct. 25—William Taylor, agent for Henry Ford, has purchased the old Hayden Brown steam fire engine and the volunteer handtub here for the Ford Museum at Dearborn.

The fire engine has been in use since 1884. The handtub belonged to the Veteran Firemen's Association and has been used at several musters.

Brothers Meet After 35 Years

Salem, Oct. 25—A 35-year separation came to an end here when Patrick Perron of Dawson City, Alaska, a realtor and mine developer, arrived to visit his brother, John Perron, of Cabot st., a builder, of this city.

The two brothers separated in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., when both were young men.

Plans Bus Line Across Country

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 25—The Union Pacific System announced that, effective October 27, it would establish a transcontinental motor bus system extending from Los Angeles and Portland to Chicago, with direct connections with Atlantic and Pacific bus lines.

Crew Flees Blazing Craft 12 Miles Out

Provincetown, Oct. 25—Launching a small seine boat when their mackerel seiner, Governor Prence, burst into flames, 13 members of the crew escaped from the burning 104-foot craft, 12 miles at sea.

Their lives were doubly threatened when, while climbing into the smaller craft, a 20-gallon tank of gasoline on the deck exploded. A great sheet of the flaming gasoline grazed their heads by inches and fell into the water only a few feet away.

V. F. W. TO HOLD ARMISTICE SERVICES

Plans have been completed for a memorial service to be held Armistice Day evening at Faneuil Hall, under the auspices of the Suffolk County Council, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The services will be dedicated to the gold star mothers and to the service men who died during the World War. Senator David I. Walsh has been invited to deliver the oration of the evening.

The navy yard band will furnish music and a detail of marines from the navy yard will assist in the observance.

Rev. Wallace Hayes, national chaplain of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will open the service with prayer. Comm. William H. Carey of Dorchester will give the address of welcome and the benediction will be by the Rev. Daniel J. Lynch, S. J., treasurer of Boston College.

There will be addresses by representatives of the State and city governments, by Department Commander Charles McCarthy of Marlboro, representing the Spanish War Veterans, and a representative of the G. A. R. Soprano solos will be rendered by Mrs. Dorothy Diamond, accompanied by Paul Bregor.

Lyman Schoolboy Held in Burglary

Willimantic, Conn., Oct. 25—A 14-year-old boy, giving his home as South Boston, is being held at the local police station in connection with a burglary at the Frank Press Market, Jackson st., this city.

Capt. Thomas F. Grady of the police department was in communication with the Lyman School authorities during the day and learned that the South Boston boy held here was committed to the Lyman School on Tuesday, and escaped.

Card Club Acts to End "Murder Motive"

New York, Oct. 25—A move to end the "murder motive" in the game of auction bridge has been made by the card committee of the Knickerbocker Whist Club here.

George Reith, chairman, announced that the informatory double has been supplanted by the "challenge" by formal action of his committee.

The challenge originally was proposed by Sidney S. Lens and has been undergoing a test at regular play at the Knickerbocker Club for months.

Reith explains that the "challenge" is the same as the informative double; that is, after the original bid by an opponent the player holding a strong hand which he prefers not to bid himself, demands that his partner make a bid by using the words "I challenge."

The partner responds by bidding his best suit.

Use of the "challenge" avoids confusion between the informative and business double," Reith explains.

Your New Silhouette Awaits You at White's at $10.75

With Flares---Bows---Drapes

If you are a gay young thing with a figure, who likes to be on with the new while it's still "hot off the griddle," you'll admire these new dresses. You'll rejoice in their high molded waistlines, their longer skirts made still longer by flares and panels, their little flat front bows, their rows of shirrings. You'll love their brilliant colorings, the cheerful reds and greens, the rich black and blues. And we know that you'll approve of the price, $10.75, for it's one that will let you put not only one silhouette but two and three in your fall wardrobe. Sizes 11 to 20.

LABOR PLANS BETTER LIVING CONDITIONS

About 30 delegates from [illegible] labor organizations are attending the New England Labor Conference which opened today at the Hotel Bancroft, Worcester, to formulate plans for bettering the economic conditions of the New England states. The conference will last three days and will be held under the auspices of the Workers Education Bureau of the American Federation of Labor.

The program calls for addresses by national leaders of the labor movement, Government executives, captains of industry and management and Governors of the New England States.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L.; Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America; William D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, and Edward E. Hunt of the United States department of commerce will participate in the three-day discussions.

The opening session was called to order by William H. Thornton, [illegible] arrangements. Addresses of welcome were made by Mr. Thornton, Freeman M. Saltus, president of the Worcester Central Labor Union; Roscoe H. Goddard, secretary of the chamber of commerce; Mayor Michael J. O'Hara and Congressman George R. Stobbs.

Thomas E. Burke, president of the workers education bureau, is permanent chairman of the congress.

President Green of the A. F. of L. was scheduled to make the opening talk of the afternoon session which will also be addressed by John S. Lawrence, Miss Mary Van Kleeck, executive secretary of the Russell Sage Foundation, and possibly Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

The evening will be devoted to group meetings on questions of transportation, textile, power, building trades, amusement and metal trades.

Pittsfield, Oct. 25—Harlan H. Ballard, librarian at the Berkshire Athenaeum, has received the highest distinction in Masonry, having been presented the jeweled special signatory of the 33d degree.

NICHOLS PULLS SURPRISE AT W. C. T. U. MEET

Springfield, Oct. 25—Expressing himself as in "deepest sympathy" with the aims of the organization, Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols caused a big surprise when he extended the "greetings of the great and flourishing and moral city of Boston" to the 56th annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union here.

The mayor, accompanied by Charles H. Innes and George H. Johnson, unexpectedly appeared at the banquet following the formal close of the convention, which went on record as repudiating Joseph Walker, former speaker of the House, as a former ardent dry worker.

Mayor Nichols is the nephew of the presiding genius of the Massachusetts W. C. T. U., Mrs. Alice G. Ropes, who was re-elected president for another year.

The disowning of the man who once worked with them and the adoption of a resolution condemning the attitude of a small section of the American bar who have deliberately organized to defend without charge violators of the national prohibition act, were high lights of the concluding business session of the convention.

"We never looked upon Joseph Walker as an ardent dry. He was always a moderate dry," Mrs. William Tilton, chairman of the committee against repeal of our State prohibition law, stated when she [illegible] of the convention.

Start Teachers' Retreat at Cenacle

A retreat of unusual interest for teachers will be held at the Cenacle Convent, Lake st., Brighton, from Friday, November 1, at 6 p. m. to Sunday, November 3, at 7:30 p. m.

The retreat master will be the noted radio speaker, the Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., of Weston, now giving the Catholic Truth conferences on Sunday afternoons. This retreat is not limited to members of the Cenacle Teachers' Guild. An invitation is extended to all teachers.

20 Die in Explosion

Tokio, Oct. 25—Fifteen Chinese and five Japanese were killed and 20 seriously injured in an explosion of dynamite in the Fushun coal mine in Manchuria, advices received here said.

Hoofs Up Ladder

Seeks Divorce

Merrimac, Oct. 25—Charging desertion, Mrs. Helen M. Welch of this town has filed a petition for divorce in the Salem Probate Court from Frederick J. Welch of parts unknown. They were married November 14, 1920.

"REDS" PREFER JAIL TERMS TO $10 FINES

Refusal to pay $10 fines, imposed by Judge Hayes in the Suffolk Superior Court after a jury had found them guilty of sauntering and loitering, a young woman and two young men, members of the Communist party, were sentenced to 20 days in the Charles st. jail.

The trio were Mrs. Elsie Pultur of East Dedham, William Simons of New York and Lewis Marks of Boston. Isidore Binchkovsky, a fourth defendant, also refused to pay his fine, but his wife balked at the jail term and paid his assessment.

The cases against Arthur Zagarta and Boris Kleid, who were also found guilty, were filed. William Siroka, a seventh defendant, who lives in New Jersey, defaulted.

Several police officers testified to the refusal of the defendants to move on when ordered. They were arrested near Appleton and Tremont sts., while they were attempting to hold a street meeting on "International Anti-Imperialist Day," August 1.

Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley was asked by the defense what instructions he had given police captains with regard to the meeting, and admitted ordering a detail of 23 men, to be hidden near the scene where it was advertised the meeting would be held.

The defendants all testified that they had not been told to move on at the point where they were arrested.

Roxbury Teacher Dies in Classroom

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at the Eliot Church for Irving H. Upton, master of the science department of the Roxbury Memorial high school, who died suddenly in his classroom shortly after the regular school session closed.

One of the teachers noticed Upton on the floor unconscious. He had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

Upton was one of the best-known teachers in the Boston public school system, having been connected with the School Department for the past 34 years. Most of his service was given at the Roxbury high school on Warren st.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Katherine Upton, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. H. H. Knight of Claremont, N. H.

NEW MT. HOPE BRIDGE OPENED WITH POMP

Bristol, R. I., Oct. 25—A dream that has gone down through the generations for more than 60 years, the erection of a bridge over Mount Hope Bay to take the place of the Bristol Ferry, has been realized.

Bowing to the age of speed, the Bristol ferry, that for 200 years has served the needs of travel for the residents of Providence, Newport and intervening places, has given way to the giant Mount Hope bay bridge which today stands out as a monument to science, brain and brawn.

The bridge erected at a cost of over $1,000,000, has been officially dedicated and christened. From now on it will go on serving the people of Rhode Island as its predecessor, the ferry boat, has done in the past.

More than 30,000 persons from all parts of Rhode Island and from far away places were on hand when this new bridge, which has taken more than two years to build, was officially opened when Vice-President Charles Curtis pushed a button in Washington.

The new bridge, easily visible in Fall River, 16 miles away, is indeed a structure of beauty. Its long slender lines that makes it appear a foot bridge in the distance and almost a chute even at close range, stands out as a defy to the hundreds of persons who had said "it couldn't be done."

While hundreds of persons, able to get to the center of the span, stood with wondering eyes, the befeathered and red-skinned Indians conducted their strange ritual and soon the governor and senator were honorary Indians.

Unfortunately for the sake of safety, only the officially invited guests were permitted to gather on the bridge expanse.

The 30,000 spectators who came to see the official opening of the bridge had to be content to listen to the exercises from a radio broadcasting arrangements that had been fitted up on the bridge.

The official exercises were opened with band concerts at either end of the bridge. On the Bristol side the concert was furnished by the Knights of Pythias band, while those on the Portsmouth side listened to the Portsmouth Boys' Band.

Martha Lee,
Director of Boston American Homemakers' Cooking School.

My Dear Friend:

[illegible] practical [illegible] and have [illegible] great benefit both in my own home and [illegible] I can truthfully say that I have used dozens of your recipes in my evening school cooking classes with excellent results. Your recipes are both practical and economical. I think these classes are a wonderful asset to women in all walks of life, and should certainly be appreciated, for the fact that all this knowledge and training is given gratis, the same, for which you would pay many [illegible] in any other cooking school.

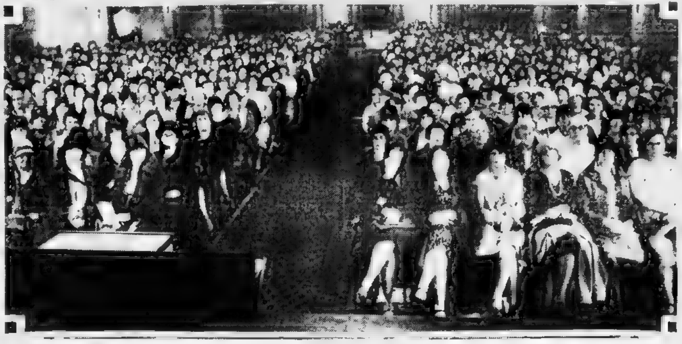
They Are the Last Word in the Art of Cooking



These women are only a handful of the thousands who attended the Martha Lee cooking classes at the Hotel Statler. The Martha Lee Club has nearly 10,000 members in and around Boston—and in New England, too—and the influence on thousands of well-cared-for families is to great too estimate.

Dutch Potato Dog Is Mighty Nice

[illegible] uses for these economical [illegible] sausages one of the most popular being to wrap the frankfurter in a long strip of leaf bacon and toast in a hot oven until the bacon crisps. Served with creamy mashed potatoes and a green vegetable this provides a well balanced economical meal.

DUTCH POTATO DOGS

Choose six good-sized potatoes rather long in shape, pare them and with an apple corer make a round hole from end to end of each. Stuff the holes with frankfurter sausages.

Mix 1 tsp. of salt with 1 tsp. of pepper, place the potatoes on the rack of a roasting pan, brush over well [illegible] sprinkle with the seasoning and bake 45 minutes at 350 to 375 deg. F.

They are improved by basting once every 15 minutes with hot melted bacon drippings mixed with hot water, but when this is done they may take a little longer to cook. Serve on lettuce leaf after sprinkling each leg with paprika.

Balanced Menu Makes It Easy to Do the Work

By planning each day's menu as a whole and by seeing to it that the necessary food ingredients are included every day it is possible to feed one's family correctly with a minimum of work.

If there are children or very active adults in the family, it is necessary to include relatively large amounts of bread and cereal. About a quart of milk a day for each child and approximately a pint for each grown-up is another requirement. Fruit, vegetables and meat, fish, cheese or nuts [illegible] play a part in the menu too.

Remember that children who are extremely active need a large amount of the energy from cereals, potatoes, bread and also need good amounts of protein for repair purposes. An energetic adolescent boy may need as much food as a man at hard labor.

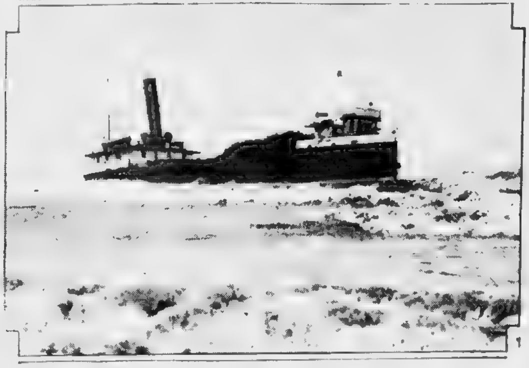
Surf Halts Rescue of 12 Passengers



The lives of 11 men and 1 woman were imperilled when the Great Lakes steamer N. J. Nessen, of Detroit, ran aground on a sand bar off Leamington, Ontario, Can. Such tremendous seas have been running since the ship drifted on the bar that the removal of the 12 stranded passengers has so far been prevented. The Nessen, which is commanded by Capt. B. A. Benson, is slowly cracking in two under the strain and both passengers and crew remain in grave danger. Five other ships came to grief in the wintry storms now sweeping the Great Lakes region. Sugar & the TEETH of Children

Sugar by itself does not affect the development and preservation of the teeth

There has been much prejudice against the use of sweets by children on the grounds of fear of decay of the teeth. Some kinds of candy collect around the teeth as do many other foodstuffs. The remedy is to keep the teeth clean - not to avoid the food stuffs in question.

Sugar by itself does not affect the development and preservation of the teeth. The healthy development of the teeth depends upon the minerals and vitamins in the diet, and the sunshine which the child enjoys. In the variety of foods required by the child, a reasonable amount of sugar offers advantageous use. Sugar makes fruits, vegetables and cereals appetizing and attractive.

The craving for sweets is natural to the growing child. With the proper selection of foodstuffs, seasoned with sugar, this craving will be met. The bones and teeth will be properly formed. The muscles will be ruggedly developed and all the essential processes of nutrition will be maintained.

Added to a properly selected diet, no hygienic reason can be urged against the use of sugar by children, including candy at the end of a meal. Scientific reasons are, in fact, in favor of such use.

Guard the health of growing children through a variety of foods made palatable by sugar used as a flavor. The Sugar Institute.

MARIANNE by Gladys Johnson

Romance in Which Love Scores Triumph

CHAPTER II

SOMETHING [illegible] in Marianne's feeble efforts to pull away from him. It made Stag think of the flutterings of birds he had caught when he was a boy.

She had no strength, for she was fighting not him alone [illegible] her own heart. Instinctively he [illegible] and he thrilled with [illegible] triumph.

He [illegible] holding her close, pressing his face to her hair until she ceased to struggle but clung to him, crying quietly.

"You see, honey—" his voice was a murmur against her half-averted face. "You don't really want to go away. Because you love me. Don't you? Say it, Marianne."

But she would not lift her head. She only clung, hiding her face against his breast.

A little stab of fear went through the young fellow. Suppose the victory were not yet won! What if he could not force her will. . . .

Marianne—He held her slightly away. "Tell me honest, do you love this other fellow?"

He cupped his hands and forced her small wet face up until the sun lay warm upon it. "Look at me, Marianne. Open your eyes."

Her wet lashes lifted, but at the [illegible] face [illegible] so close to her own she [illegible].

[illegible] that I should do [illegible]

[illegible] He dropped his [illegible] his side and his voice was hurt and angry. "I guess you don't have to do anything. I guess I'm just a poor damn fool . . . Kidding myself int othinkin' you cared—"

Her heart went out to him in a little warm rush. "Ah, no, chere! You must not think that I—that I do not care! But oh, can't you understan' . . ." her voice broke, "there is Andre! Listen—let me tell you . . . Andre went away, that day they declared war. I am just sixteen then. That is not ver' old, chere, and love—that is something I do not know ver' much about. And when I see Andre about to go away, when his brown eyes look at me, so sad, something go over me like a dream. Ah . . ." she broke off piteously, "I cannot make it tell right."

How to get into words the excitement of Papa Gerard's drum throbbing through the blood. The breathless thrill of that moment under the willows when Andre had kissed her . . .

She looked up into Stag's watchful grey eyes and gave a little gulp.

"I do not know then that love was like like this." Her hands crushed hard on her heart. "I think I love Andre. Never before has any man kissed me. I think surely that is love—you see."

"Go on," said the young fellow [illegible] lip.

"So Andre marched away. Twice he come back for short visits. He come out here. He see my aunt and I ask that he should marry me [when] the war is over. We are engage'. And I think THAT is love!"

She was struggling with tears again.

"Four years he is out there—that brave Andre. Four years in the zone of advance——"

Stag sucked in his breath as memory flashed. "Four years out there . . . dodgin' whizz-bangs . . . Gee . . . The poor devil!"

He was not touching Marianne now. He had moved a step away and his arms hung inertly at his side.

"Everything was ver' sad in [those] years. My aunt, she die. I am so lonely . . . I take my bebes then to live here with me. I write to Andre all the time. Oh, you see he think I love him. I think so, too. And now—how can I tell him different!"

"Where is he now?" Stag asked [illegible].

"He is took prisoner to L'Allemand."

Stag licked his dry lips. "That means . . ." his voice was husky, "that he'll be comin' home soon. An' me trying to sneak up on his girl . . ." He turned away, then blurted angrily, "Why didn't you tell me all this before? Why didn't you let me know about him?"

She made a little helpless gesture. "I did not know that—that you care for me. And I did not know that I care so. Only now—when you kiss me—"

He devoured her with his eyes at that.

"Maybe, if you stay——" she was pitifully brave, stumbling over the words, "and when Andre comes back—maybe he is not caring for me like before. I was just a child. Maybe in all these times Andre have changed too. Maybe he not ask that I keep that promise . . ."

He interrupted her roughly. "Let's not lie to ourselves. Any man that cares for you is caring still. Only I care most, Marianne!"

"No . . . No . . ." she was crying again. "When you [say] that [illegible] my heart out."

"You see . . ." Now he was standing close to her again. "You do care for me. You love me, Marianne. And this other poor [guy]—well, he just lost out."

Hot grey eyes plunging deep into her own. Calling that sweet, frightening rush of passion through her blood. She gasped. He saw it

SAUGUS MAY HOLD RACES IF FREE

Sunday Horse Show Features Not Against Law, Says Town Justice

Saugus may have Sunday horse racing as a horse show feature without interference from Judge William E. Ludden, providing no admission is charged.

Races were held at the Sunday horse show on the Fisk estate, conducted by the Saugus Riding Club, and it is reported some citizens will seek court action.

"The matter has not been brought to my attention officially," stated Judge Ludden, "but I have been acquainted with the facts and [illegible]

[illegible] I would decide that it is not a violation of the Sunday sports law which our selectmen voted not to accept.

"As I understand it there was no actual horse racing as such, but simply an exhibition for the benefit of the spectators, the exhibitors showing off their [horses] in running, jumping and the like.

"I do not regard it any differently than I would a [horse] show or any other exhibition for which no admission is charged."

ASK LEGION TO MEET SEPT. 8

Boston hotel men favor September 8 next year as the opening date of the national convention of the American Legion in Boston as they will be better able then to handle the big crowds than at any other time during September or October.

This was brought out at a conference between the City of Boston Hotel Association members and a delegation of American Legion officials headed by State Commander John J. O'Connell and State Adjutant [illegible].

Commander O'Connell [told] the hotel men that between 250,000 and 300,000 people would come to Boston for the convention and the housing problem will be one of the biggest items to contend with.

The suggestion was made that the officials of Harvard and M. I. T. might be induced to offer their dormitories to the Legion to care for some of the visiting veterans.

Gets Five Years on Robbery Count

Angelo Bi[anco] of Brooks st. was sentenced to the State prison by Judge Gray of the Suffolk Superior Court for a term of five to [illegible] years for a brutal attack upon and robbery of Lawrence A. Childs, a coast guardsman.

Dominic Massela of Emmons st. was sent to the Concord reformatory for an indefinite term, and Grover DiLorenzo was placed on probation. Louis Caggiano of Chelsea st. was also placed on probation.

Love Language No Go With Translator

Miss Custine F. Beck translates an average of 2000 letters a year [illegible] foreign tongues into English for members of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, but when it comes to translating matrimonial inquiries she draws the line.

Such a request came to Miss Beck in her Park sq. office recently.

"It was written in Spanish and the manufacturer who received it had no idea what it contained," Miss Beck explained.

"It was a lengthy document which looked like a price offer from South American firm. I started to translate it and to my amazement found it setting forth, not the merits of some commercial product, but of various attractive senoritas advertising for rich American husbands! Of course I did not continue translating."

Most of the letters sent into the Association headquarters for the translation service are written in Spanish, many in French and German, the latter having a decided increase recently.

Translation of these foreign letters to New England firms is a fascinating part of Miss Beck's work, she said, since most of them are from new customers who are asking for information about New England products.

They indicate the steady growth of our trade in other lands, and she counts no day dull that brings in more than 20 of these letters to be translated into English and often replied to in the same language.

Settle Dispute of Rally Sites

The battle of City Councillor Israel Ruby and his opponent, Attorney Joseph Beatak, seeking election to the City Council from Ward 11, Dorchester, was settled amicably without the intervention of the Board of Street Commissioners, when the candidates agreed to divide the permits for street rallies during the remainder of their campaign.

Beatak claimed that Ruby had hogged all the good street corners in the district by obtaining permits illegally," while Ruby insisted that he had not taken all the best rally points, and questioned Beatak's permit applications.

Woman Charges Attempt on Life

Atty. Gallagher Miss Compolocso Mrs. Compolocso Mrs. Materano

Four men were held in $3000 bail each on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon on Mrs. Rosalie Materano of Medford st., Medford. They are said to have called at Mrs. Materano's home at 2 a. m. and fired shots through the front door on her refusal to talk to them about the rejection of one of their number by her unmarried sister. Mrs. Materano is shown leaving court with members of her family and her counsel. (Staff photo.)

FOUR MEN HELD IN SHOOTING

At the conclusion of a hearing lasting several hours, Judge Alfred G. Davis of Malden District Court held four men for the grand jury in $3000 bail each on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon on Mrs. Rosalie Materano of Medford st., Medford.

The men are Angelo Pe[illegible] and Joseph Lattino, Wakefield brothers, and Salvatore Incaglio of Boston. It is alleged they visited the home of Mrs. Materano and fired shots through the front door at 2 a. m. upon her refusal to talk with them about the rejection of one of their number by her unmarried sister.

The Old Bean Supper Taboo in Middlesex

The old-fashioned New England church supper is to be relegated to [illegible]

[illegible] Feeney, home demonstration agent, is conducting a contest for the best community meal served in Middlesex County before Feb. 28, 193[illegible].

[illegible] community organization [illegible] most closely approximate the ideals held by the extension service in the matter of meals.

According to Miss Feeney, the old-time supper, with the emphasis placed upon ham, beans and brown bread, accompanied by every sort of accessory the New England housewife could devise, was extremely harmful from a health standpoint.

The model meal, as outlined generally by Miss Feeney, begins with a light soup or a fruit cocktail. [The] meat course should be light [illegible] and the use of a [illegible] such as baked beans or [illegible] spaghetti, is recommended. In no case are meat and beans to be allowed on the same plate, however.

[The] meat course is to be accompanied by two vegetables. For dessert, a custard or gelatine is suggested, with coffee allowable, but frowned upon. All under 21 [illegible] milk.

MOVE TO AMEND AUTO TAX LAW

Amendment of the excise tax law, particularly the 60-day clause [illegible]

[illegible] the House of Representatives an amendment he is confident will eliminate much of the present wide spread opposition to the new excise tax levied upon owners of motor cars in Massachusetts this year.

The proposed amendment makes it mandatory for local assessors [to] abate to the first owner of any car that changes ownership the portion of the excise tax prorated from the first of the month following the date of [illegible].

The [illegible] quarter [illegible] tax on a car registered in the [illegible] third, second or first quarter of the year is respectively, one-fourth, one-half, three-fourths or the full year's rate.

The amendment relating to the 60-day clause provides that any car owner may apply for an abatement of his tax at any time before the first of October, or within 60 days of the receipt of notice of assessment.

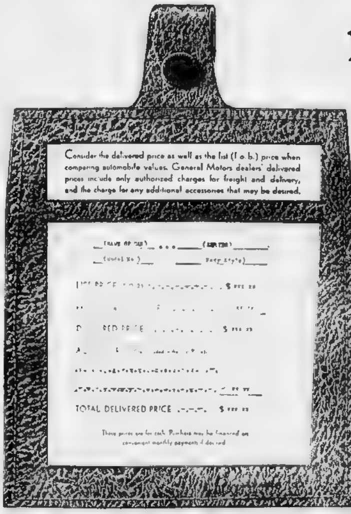
Make this price tag your guide in comparing new car values



Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f. o. b.) price when comparing automobile values. General Motors dealers' delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery, and the charge for any additional accessories that may be desired.

TOTAL DELIVERED PRICE .... $

These prices are for cash. Purchase may be financed on convenient monthly payments if desired.

List Price. The f. o. b. price advertised by the factory.
Freight and Delivery. An authorized amount to cover the freight [illegible] the dealer and the cost of unloading, inspecting, [illegible] and oil—preparing the car for delivery to you.
Accessories. A charge for any additional accessories that may [illegible].

TWO different cars may be advertised at approximately the same "f.o.b." price, yet there may be a considerable difference between their delivered prices.

Why?

Because the delivered price of a new car is set by the dealer. To the "f.o.b." price he adds certain charges—and these may, or may not, be fair and reasonable.

In line with General Motors' policy of frankness, its dealers use the standard price tag illustrated at the left. It shows you exactly what makes up the delivered price of a new General Motors car. Every charge is there; every charge is fair and reasonable. There is nothing hidden to permit a seemingly better trade-in offer, or to cover advertising, etc.

Make this standard price tag your guide in comparing automobile values. Use it to analyze the items that make up the delivered prices of other cars. Make sure you are getting your money's worth. The General Motors cars are:

BOXER ADMITS THEFT OF MINISTER'S COAT TO KEEP BRIDE WARM

WIFE SEEKS TO ANNUL MARRIAGE

Spouse Threatened Her With Gun Before Ceremony, Bride, 17, Testifies

[illegible] of an [illegible] coat from the [illegible] the married him to keep his bride warm, featured the testimony of John O'Hannian, a boxer, of [illegible] South End, in the Suffolk Superior Court, to which his wife, Mrs. Eva O'Hannian, 17, appealed for an annulment.

The couple were married in Princeton, R. I., Jan. 7, 1929. They went to Providence to avoid the Massachusetts five day law, according to O'Hannian's testimony, but found there the same obstacle. O'Hannian admitted having been convicted in Rhode Island of giving false information to receive the license.

When they left the minister's house, he said, he noticed that his bride was shivering.

"I loved that girl," he said. "I would do anything for her. I went back to the house and took an overcoat. I didn't know whose it was. I didn't care."

A few days later Mrs. O'Hannian returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John George of [illegible]. She testified they never lived together as man and wife.

Mrs. O'Hannian testified that O'Hannian held a revolver to her [illegible] before he entered the minister's home and claimed she was drugged before she left Boston for Providence.

O'Hannian, who was born in [illegible] but has lived in Watertown and Boston since his early youth, is in his twenties. He testified that he loved the girl, that she loved him and wanted to marry him. He first met her at her father's home, he said.

Under cross-examination by Attorney [illegible] A. Loumos, counsel for O'Hannian, Dr. William C. Kennedy of the Carney Hospital, who had given medical testimony for Mrs. O'Hannian, said he was sure that she was the one whom he had examined, and not her sister, who, according to the attorney, resembles her closely.

It was agreed that at the next hearing both sisters would be in the room.

During a recess some of the women friends of Mrs. O'Hannian attacked O'Hannian in the corridor. [illegible], Mrs. Elizabeth [illegible]nasian, came between her brother and his assailants as he was making no effort to strike back, [illegible] she [illegible] to have been struck a severe blow in the abdomen. She collapsed and a physician was summoned.

Needless Pain!

Nowadays, people take Bayer Aspirin for many little aches and pains, and as often as they encounter any pain.

Why not? It is a proven antidote for pain. It works!

And Bayer Aspirin tablets are utterly harmless. You have the medical profession's word for that; they do not depress the heart.

So, don't let a cold "run its course." Don't wait for a headache to "wear off." Or regard neuralgia, neuritis, or even rheumatism as something you must endure. Only a physician can cope with the cause of such pain, but you can always turn to Bayer Aspirin for relief.

Bayer Aspirin is always available, and it always helps. Familiarize yourself with its many uses, and avoid a lot of needless suffering.

COLLEGE GRID TEAMS TO BE GUESTS

"THE SOPHOMORE," Pathe's all-talking comedy, which is the next feature attraction at the New R. K. O. Keith's, will have its first showing at a midnight performance tonight, which will start promptly at 11:30. And incidentally, this "eleventh hour" performance will usher in what will be known as College Week at the big picture house. Beginning Monday, each night during the week will be dedicated to one of the colleges in Boston and the football team of each will be the guests. Monday will be Boston College night; Tuesday has been set aside for Boston University; Wednesday, Northeastern College as well as Medford and Everett high schools; Thursday, Harvard, and Tufts College on Friday.

Eddie Quillan

"The Sophomore" is a humorous story of modern college life. Eddie Quillan, the wisecracking sophomore with an overgrown [illegible] and Sally O'Neil and Jeanette Loff have the principal feminine roles.

All seats at the midnight show are reserved. There will be other additional features on the program, including an organ novelty entitled [illegible] by Roy Frazee at the giant Wurlitzer, a comedy starring Johnny Arthur and Pauline Garon, the usual sound News and a Disney Cartoon.

Jean Hersholt Returns To California to Study

Jean Hersholt, who returned to Hollywood from Tampa, Fla., where he had been working in the Inspiration picture, "Hell's Harbor," started immediately to prepare his part in "Mamba," the Tiffany-Stahl all-color, ten-reel picture in which Eleanor Boardman and Ralph Forbes will also be featured.

Contracts for Denny, Ralston, Von Stroheim

Three prominent featured players have been signed by the Color-Art Synchro-Tone Corp. They are Esther Ralston, Reginald Denny and Eric von Stroheim. Denny has played in many Universal features, while Von Stroheim's latest role was that of the ventriloquist in James Cruze's "The Great Gabbo."

"Broadway Scandals"

WOBBLY LEGS MADE STAR OF ERROL

LEON ERROL, star and comedian in Earl Carroll's musical comedy, "Fioretta," which comes to the Tremont on November 4, boasts of a pair of the best trained legs in America. They fold up at will and have earned a fortune for Errol.

Errol and his legs first became famous in Australia, where he was born. He studied medicine and was attending the University of Sydney when induced to join the cast in an amateur show. He was the hit of the show.

He deserted his medical career for the stage and obtained an engagement with George Rignold's company of Shakespearean players. For two years he trouped, but over for the comics proved too strong, and when his public saw him again it was in the multiple job of circus clown, acrobat and animal trainer.

It was at this juncture that he accidentally developed the knobby knees and became the famous knee bending comedian.

H-D BATTLE TOPS LOCAL LIST

By BILL GRIMES

Bill Grimes

ALTHOUGH the spotlight [illegible] be centered on the Harvard-Dartmouth and Yale-West Point contests, there are [illegible] other important games scheduled for tomorrow.

The fighting Irish from Notre Dame will be in Pittsburgh for their annual clash with Carnegie Tech. Notre Dame is represented by an exceptionally strong eleven this season, one which has already turned back Indiana, Navy and Wisconsin, but in Carnegie Tech, the South Bend institution is meeting a team which has not been scored upon this year.

Therefore, the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech battle promises to be one of the [illegible] of the [illegible]. Last year Carnegie Tech upset the fighting Irish 27 to 7 and over a period of years have proven very troublesome for the Rockne outfit. Although Princeton has its back against the wall, due to its defeats by Cornell and Brown and the fact that it was able to defeat Amherst only by one touchdown, the Navy is a heavy favorite to win the battle at Tiger town.

Navy was the only team that defeated Princeton last year, scoring a 9 to 0 victory in the final game of the season.

EASY GAME FOR B. C.

Boston College expects little trouble from Canisius while Holy Cross hopes to get back into its winning stride at the expense of Marquette, a team which held the Crusaders even last year.

One of the most important small college games will be the University of New Hampshire-Tufts set-to at Durham. Although Tufts has not been scored on this year they are meeting a well trained and very capable eleven in the Bean Cats.

Brown will entertain Syracuse at Providence but Coach "Tuss" McLaughry's charges have played Princeton and Yale on successive Saturdays and are expected to be severely handicapped by injuries suffered during the past fortnight.

Boston University will leave for Springfield tomorrow morning where they hope to score their second consecutive victory over the conquerors of Brown.

MAINE TITLE GAME

For the past two years Colby and the State university have been deadlocked for the Maine State championship, but this season it appears as though the Light and Dark Blue will not figure in the championship, being replaced by Bowdoin.

If such is to be the case, tomorrow's game at Brunswick, which will bring together Colby and Bowdoin, will be one of the most important in the State series.

Last year at Waterville, Eddie Roundy's Colby team defeated Bowdoin, 14 to 0. While Colby and Bowdoin are trying to knock each other out of the State title at Brunswick, [illegible] and Maine will be battling at Lewiston. Although Bates has not been able to win a game this season, it has shown a vast improvement since Dave Morey took charge and may spring a surprise by defeating the perennial champions.

The Vermont State championship will also get underway tomorrow, with Vermont and Norwich clashing at Northfield. The Cadets and the Burlington collegiates battled to a scoreless tie last year and Norwich took the title by defeating Middlebury, which had conquered Veremont.

AMHERST FAVORITE

Amherst is a heavy favorite over Wesleyan, and the Lord Jeffs will put on pressure to wipe out the sting of last year's 20 to 20 contest.

There will be three games played in New York, with the Fordham-Davis and Elkins contest as the leading attraction. Chick Meehan's wearers of the N. Y. U. violet tackles Butler, while Columbia will play Williams.

Smith and Hawley featured for Haskell Indians for many years, the former a very classy halfback while Hawley has few superiors as a center.

Malden High in Test Tomorrow

Malden high, undefeated this year, goes to Manchester tomorrow afternoon. The Blue and Gold has never won a game from the New Hampshire team, though the elevens fought to a tie on one occasion. Ed Goodreau has a real team at Malden this year, however and his chances are good.

Several thousand Malden fans are going to the game. The loyalty and spirit of these faithful followers of the team are reflected in the spirit of the grid squad of Malden high.

First Scrimmage for Tiger Six

The first scrimmage of the season for Boston Tigers, champions of the Canadian-American League, is scheduled for tomorrow noon at the Arena.

Manager Eddie Powers is anxious to see how some of his new men shape up in action. The Tigers are scheduled to open the season in New Haven the 10th of next month and none too much time remains for preliminary work.

"Deacon" Waite, the galloping hair-pin of the Tiger forward line, was scheduled to arrive in Boston today.

Answering THREE questions about suits, topcoats or tuxedos, $22.50

1. What are the fabrics? The fabrics are, in our opinion, exceptional at this price. In fact they are duplicated in many of the higher priced lines. They include clear finished worsteds, unfinished worsteds, cheviots and tweeds in plain colors and [illegible] weaves.

2. How they are made: These suits are all machine sewn the result of changed conditions, mass production, machine precision, and enormous output.

3. How can we sell them for $22.50? Well, frankly, we alone could not make these values. 13 large stores had to combine their orders, and buy as a unit to get the fabrics, the styles, and the details that we wanted.

For a man who wants a good inexpensive suit or topcoat for business, school, pleasure, or a tuxedo for evening wear, we can think of no better values than those we have in our inexpensive clothing department on the street floor of the Men's Store.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

JAKE CHOICE FOR GARDEN BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY

SAMMY FULLER, colorful North End featherweight, will try to even up an old score with Jake Zeramby when he [illegible] sensational Lynn boxer in a 10 round bout at the Boston Garden tonight.

Fuller will try to say it with a knockout punch [illegible] as much [illegible] the fact that Zeramby defeated him on a foul at Fenway Park last summer. The American [illegible] still insists that the blow that sent Zeramby to the canvas was fair.

Jack Conway

Fuller's money was held up by order of Referee [illegible] Walsh after the last meeting with Zeramby [illegible] friends [illegible] whom he blames for all of his [illegible].

If Zeramby hadn't claimed a foul against Fuller he would have won by a knockout and have got his money along with the glory that goes with a ring victory.

THE rival punch flingers have [illegible] to make 1?1 pounds for tonight's bout. Fuller is always below this notch when in condition.

Zeramby has been obliged to [illegible] training to get down to the [illegible] As [illegible]

THE tussle should be replete with [illegible] have [illegible] and [illegible] expected to be on hand when festivities get under way.

Fuller and Zeramby will be supported by a bang up preliminary card.

Joe Zelinsky, the Binghampton boy who proved such a sensation in his recent bout with Arthur Flynn, will clash with Willie Oster of New London in an eight rounder, which is expected to result in a knockout.

Hy Diamond of the West End will take on Lew Perfetti of New York, a hard punching youngster who has beaten Steve Smith, Cannibal Martin, Al Ridgway, Vic Petten and Dominick Petronne in recent starts.

VITTORIO LIVAN, Italian middleweight champion, and Larry Brignolia of Cambridge are carded for a six-round swatfest, while Phil Verde of Syracuse meets Johnny Delano of East Boston. Verde is one of the stars of the ring with a victory over Eddie Curley and two draws with Bushy Graham to his credit. In another six, Joe Thomas of Des Moines meets Joe Tavlerl of Cambridge.

In the opening four-rounder, George Russo of Revere will meet Sam Olson of Lynn.

Tufts Harriers Meet B. U. Today

Boston University's cross-country team will meet the Tufts harriers in a dual run over the Franklin Park course this afternoon. This is to be the first meet of the season for the Terriers and their strength is unknown as only four of the 10 B. U. starters are veterans.

SETTLE OLD SCORE AT GARDEN TONIGHT

Sammy Fuller and Jake Zeramby meet tonight at the Boston Garden to settle a fistic feud of long standing. The pair met at Fenway Park last summer and Zeramby won the bout on a foul. Fuller claims the blow was fair, and promises to knock Jake out in their bout tonight.

VIBRA-CONTROL
brings true tone realism to NEW FADA RADIOS

MUSIC is simply audible vibrations. Controlled, they bring harmony. Uncontrolled, discord. Sounds simple, yet radio's greatest problem was to control these vibrations.

But today all this is ended . . . for Fada has at last achieved Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all radio vibrations . . . and with it has eliminated distortion, interference, rumbles, rain barrel tones and roars.

On a Fada every note, every shading of tone now comes to you exactly as broadcast . . . exquisitely true, surprisingly clear . . . a mirror-like reproduction of the artists themselves. For Vibra-Control is the long-sought secret of tone realism.

It would take a thousand words to explain this great achievement; but in ten minutes you can discover what Vibra-Control will mean to you. Hear it today . . . and get the thrill of radio reception stripped of mechanical noise.

Only Fada has Vibra-Control, priced from $99.50 to $675.00.

"Give us colors subdued and darker; patterns that are plain, and fabrics that are hard finished", demand both the "old timers" of 21 and the young men of 50! Clothes, they agree, should be trim and without any affectations. Shoulders must be square; and the jacket should be fitted, just a bit, at the waist. ▼ ▼ The designers of Bond Fashions for Men have developed this modern silhouette for both young men, and men who stay young (with due regard for the possible absence of sylph-like contours). They have created twelve different models—so that all men, regardless of build, may enjoy the smartness of the new styles. ▼ ▼ As fitting accomplices, Bond has selected out-of-the-ordinary weaves and color harmonies that will appeal to discriminating men of all ages. ▼ ▼ And here's an "angle" not to be overlooked—only because Bond sells more two-trouser suits in this range than does any other retailer in the world, is it possible to present such obvious quality at these prices!

But the fact remains that when some one goes into the water at the airport the chances of a rescue are now greater than they have ever been since the airport was established.

The [illegible] at the port appreciate this fact and each one thanks the mayor, park commissioner and airport superintendent.

The [illegible] which has been [illegible] and [illegible] runways [illegible] another step [illegible] in the development of the port and Supt. Elton hopes to have the [illegible] area [illegible] before the frost gets into the ground.

The two "flying doctors," Doc Gately of East Boston and Doc Chase of Chelsea, will shortly be flying formation together because Chase's Travel Air is almost ready for test hops. Doc Chase had the entire airplane rebuilt and re-covered [illegible] it stands now, with its black fuselage and yellow wings, it is one of the best looking ships on the field.

Doc Gately is the owner of a [illegible] Anders [illegible] [illegible] It won't be [illegible] before [illegible] is ready for [illegible] both Doc on [illegible]

Doc Chase's wife, Mrs. Mildred Chase, is a private pilot in her own right and she is just counting minutes before she goes battling through the sky in the Travel Air again. Mrs. Chase is one of the most enthusiastic women pilots and she is leaving her husband a merry chase after the elusive flying hours for a limited commercial license.

The moving of East Coast Aircraft's equipment from the present temporary base at Muller Field, Revere, to the new quarters at the Boston Airport will take place in about a week or ten days, according to Fred Ames, president.

This will mean that the company, New England service agent of the Wright Whirlwind and distributors of Travel Air and Keystone Loening air yachts, will be set once and for all for quarters.

Russell Boardman, Cape Cod dealer for the company and head of the Boardman Aircraft Corp. will have offices in the new building, along with the Harvard Flying Club, which keeps its new Travel Air in the hangar. The club expects to have its office decked up as a club room, in which future meetings of the organization will be held.

[illegible] the Harvard Flying Club's ship was the first plane to spend a night in the new home of East Coast. Fred Ames and his sales manager, Frank LeMire, will make this a point when the new building is dedicated.

4 Russian Fliers Land in Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 25—Enroute to New York on their projected round-the-world flight, the four Russian fliers in the monoplane, Land of the Soviets, arrived at Curtiss Airport after a non-stop trip from North Platte, Neb.

Greeted by a crowd of about 300 civic leaders, army men and aviation enthusiasts, the fliers were driven to Chicago and went to the hotel which will be their headquarters today.

A Kiss For Corinna By May Christie

CHAPTER 49

T[illegible]

Her [illegible] to [illegible] She must [illegible] there [illegible] before the [illegible] eyes of [illegible] other [illegible] forced [illegible] woman who had [illegible]

[illegible] Malvey [illegible] More and [illegible] fascinate [illegible] Corinna— [illegible] spend hours [illegible] cruel [illegible] mouse-col[illegible] perfuming them [illegible] little curls [illegible] would entwine [illegible] more and more tightly [illegible] the heart of Malvey.

[illegible] as [illegible] old Greek tragedy.

The day dragged by. Monsieur Jahan, who had given out his last bit of good humor in sending her for a belated lunch with Miss Van Wyck, was fussy and irascible.

He snapped at everybody. In one of his famous "permanent waves" he burned off two metal curl-fuls from the head of a wealthy patron. Ensued lamentations that rang from end to end of the beauty parlor [illegible] apologies [illegible] recriminations.

He blamed the lapse on Corinna [illegible] who hadn't tied the [illegible] apex [illegible]

[illegible] day in every meaning of the term.

But Corinna was even more miserable when it had ended.

What on earth to do with the long desolate evening?

Then suddenly she bethought herself of Marie [illegible] her [illegible] of M[illegible]

[illegible] this [illegible]

Yes, she would do it. She'd go to Mortimer's roof apartment [illegible] plunge into [illegible] regret.

[illegible] tidings [illegible] tonight [illegible]

"It just [illegible] to see you waste yo[illegible] and opportunities [illegible] Malvey," she added. "[illegible] snacks in cheap cafe[illegible] rambles on Broadway, and window-shopping without ever getting a present, where did it lead you?"

Corinna [illegible] her lips white and set: "In [illegible] a morass of misery."

Marie [illegible] "You were irritated and [illegible] and upset, oh! man [illegible] And he was [illegible] over his beast [illegible]

"You—" [illegible] him, Marie [illegible]

"I'll tell the world [illegible] climber. Doesn't [illegible] he stands you up [illegible] as he gets his footing with [illegible] Crisswells! But tonight I'll [illegible] him something that'll make him sit up and take notice. And you aren't going in any old rag either. We're both coming out in the [illegible] French [illegible]"

"Oh, Marie [illegible]"

"Ah, couldn't I. You [illegible] the show's over."

"You mean [illegible] going to borrow something from the theater?"

"Certainly I do. Why shouldn't we step out with the best of 'em?"

"If the manager finds out you've done it again—"

"What of it? I'm fed up on the show. He told me yesterday I was a flop. I've half a mind in any case to fire myself."

Marie was reckless. She had made it up with her erstwhile beau Peter J. Pattison. But, doubting his veracity and having been deceived about the fact of his marriage, she varied from ardor to uneasiness. She had a date with him tonight, and it would help to even things up a bit by breaking it.

Oh, tit for tat. That was a good motto.

"You told Mortimer to come for us at 11:30, you say? You're sure you made it clear to him that I'd be with you?"

"Yes, I wouldn't go on any other condition," replied Corinna, truthfully if not over-tactfully.

But Marie didn't mind whether she were welcome or not, so long as the pickings were good, and the fun fast and hilarious.

"I hope he brings us both a bushelful of orchids. Even if you aren't a flirt, old dear, those roses he wished on you a couple days back are already withered!"

Which was quite true. The American beauties hung their heads as though they sympathized with Corinna's sorrow.

Marie proceeded: "Orchids'll make my Pete as mad as a hatter. Now that he knows I'm wise to the wife and kids in Jersey, he makes that sort of excuse to go slow on the decorations.

I FEEL [illegible] Nellie Browne.

"Nellie Browne"—that sounds gay and youth[illegible] doesn't it? [illegible] she IS gay and [illegible] she [illegible]

[illegible] vibrant voice [illegible] eager voice [illegible] with a [illegible] rippling through its supple rise and fall.

Most [illegible] people are something left [illegible] Nellie Browne is something [illegible] IS. She has [illegible] person as [illegible] down [illegible] concentrating [illegible] She has done it by deliberately turning away from herself and looking at life.

Life has been, and IS, a Big Show to Nelly Browne. SHE HAS NEVER LET IT BECOME A PURELY PERSONAL EXPERIENCE. Therein lies the secret of her amazing youth. Plenty of things have happened to her, plenty of very hard things. Sickness, poverty, [illegible] strain, the loss of [illegible] have come but [illegible] happen [illegible] horizon [illegible] SENSE [illegible]

SHE LEARNED AND THEREAFTER HELD HER PLACE IN THE SCHEME OF THINGS.

She did not think that the things that happened to her were of SUPREME importance. She did not feel that the rare opportunity of living should be wasted on thinking about these things or talking about them. Always LIFE ITSELF—the Big Show of Life—was what mattered to Nelly Browne [illegible]

There before her was the [illegible] life [illegible] She did not let [illegible] of them come so near her that they OBSTRUCTED THE VIEW. She always kept herself a little detached from herself.

AND BECAUSE SHE KEPT HERSELF A LITTLE DETACHED FROM HER LIFE SHE WAS ABLE TO BEAR IT AND RISE ABOVE IT . . . AND CONTINUE TO BE A PERSON.

This didn't "just happen" to her. She wasn't born that way any more than you or I are born that way. She determined to live that way because it seemed to her the finest, and most sensible way to live.

Now she has her reward and meeting her, you share it with her. She [illegible] something to you . . . warms you by her wit . . . releases you by her philosophy . . . and you find yourself perceiving what a rare adventure life may be. She is not like other old ladies. She does not look back and wring her hands. She does not wander, mumbling and mouthing, through old memories. Nor does she try to simulate youth by dressing and acting like a flapper. She IS young. Life moves as vividly for her today as when she was 16. Looking through her eyes you see what she sees . . . NOT Nelly Browne but THE BIG SHOW.

The Truth

ABOUT COMPARATIVE WORTH
By ELINOR GLYN

"ALL WORK and no play [illegible]

Elinor Glyn

[illegible] perfect god, but after a visit to the city she might find him too uncultured.

She should not then turn up her nose at him immediately, but think of what other qualities he possesses that may, perhaps, counterbalance his crudeness. And if he seems uncultivated she should consider if it is because he has had no opportunities? Or because there is some flaw in character?

If the latter, her added experience of the city would enable her to detect this and be justly glad she had escaped such a fate as would have been hers if she had drawn him for a husband.

But if her aroused sense of perception tells her that his faults are merely those she herself had demonstrated before her city experience, then if she loves him she will enlighten and widen his mind.

This is merely an illustration of what I mean by "perception." I hope you understand my thought, girls.

Fascination of Evil

By LUCY LOWELL

HERE is a letter from a youngster in Boston. If you happen to be a youngster yourself it will interest you, as it will if you are one who sometimes tries to fathom [illegible]

Lucy Lowell

[illegible] nothing [illegible] attract the youth of the writer. Nothing except the problem which it presents: a problem which could not possibly exist save for one whose years are too few to hold much experience.

"Dear Lucy Lowell:

"All my life I've found evil people, particularly dishonest people, very, very interesting. Interesting to the point of being very, very fascinating. I always admire the villain or villainess more than the hero or heroine and feel hurt when they fail, and the more evil they are and the more cruel they are the better I like them. I just revel in their evil doings and live it all by proxy.

"In real life I prefer bad company. Goodness seems stupid and annoying to me, so I don't even pretend to be good, and I always did and still do love to put children up to mischief.

"Am I depraved? Or is it a form of just pure meanness? Why am I that way?

"A Friend of the Evil Genius."

No, youngster—you see I'm not going to take your signature seriously—you're not depraved. Your trouble is mostly youngness and woeful inexperience, and—don't be offended—a bit of the Smart Aleck strain.

Somebody, somewhere, at some time, told you that evil was a thing to be avoided and it aroused in you an attitude of "Oh, that's all right for others, but I'm different. I'm not stupid enough to think that if you're good you'll be happy." And right then you started out to dazzle yourself with the big glamor of evil.

Well, the glamor [illegible] but the promise never [illegible] through. That's a characteristic of evil, you see, that it never makes good on anything. It is the nature of evil to be just a bluff; it cannot be honestly dishonest, even. So what is there about it for one to admire?

When you have lived long enough to receive a few hard knocks from malice and greed and treachery and hatred, personified in that same evil genius you call your friend, you will decide that perhaps there is something to be said for square dealing after all.

The only really discouraging thing about your letter, youngster, is that in which you picture yourself shoving your pose off on children. Why not pick on somebody your size?

Speedy Engagement

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am coming to you for advice.

There is a fellow I met three weeks ago. He is not very nice looking, but as you know, looks don't count nowadays. He is polite and generous. All I can say is, I like him, but I do not love him. And he loves me dearly.

Here is the question. He wants me to marry him. My father and mother would not object, but I think I am too young. I am only 16 years old.

I would not be married for at least [illegible] year. Do you think if I took [illegible] engagement ring I would learn to love him enough to marry him? He wants to give me a ring on my birthday. If I take it would [illegible] would be a nice way of thanking him?

ENGAGED.

BECOME engaged after an acquaintance of three weeks! Isn't that [illegible] things up a bit [illegible]

If I were you, my dear, I would [illegible] friends for a [illegible] find out whether you really [illegible] for each other.

A year from now you will know better whether you can learn to love your new friend. But learning to love is at best a task. Why not postpone the engagement until you are sure you are in love. There is not the least hurry, you know, about getting married. You have years before you in which to choose wisely.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

There is one man whom I am very anxious to get acquainted with. He often passes and stares at me, but I do not know whether to return the stare or look away.

He seems to be a home-staying boy. I know this for a fact, because he lives near me and I never once have seen him with a girl.

I never go out any places where I would meet him, and as I am very anxious to have this problem solved I am putting it before you. My family know this boy and my brothers went to school with him. He never comes to the house, though, because he has no need to.

PERPLEXED.

WHY, your problem is comparatively simple, Perplexed, as far as meeting the young man in question is concerned.

Take your brothers—or one brother—into your confidence and ask them to introduce you to the young man without telling him you asked for an introduction. This can be arranged, for some day when you are walking with your brother and happen to meet the young man he can surely find a pretext to stop a moment, question him casually and, quite naturally, introduce you.

Hour for Weddings

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What is the best hour, in your opinion, for weddings? I am considering choosing the hour of 6 o'clock for mine. Would you think that this is a convenient hour?

BRIDE TO BE.

FOUR o'clock is the favorite hour for a wedding in fashionable circles in this country. It is really quite a perfect hour, for it gives time for the ceremony, for the reception and for the guests to wave au revoir to the bride and groom and to return to their homes in time to dress for dinner.

High noon weddings are also in favor with brides, and high noon is the hour associated traditionally with weddings in the Anglican Church. This is a charming hour for weddings, but is apt to be more convenient for the bride and groom than for the guests.

Evening weddings, which are the custom in some parts of the country, are not fashionable in cosmopolitan circles.

Now, about that hour of 6 o'clock. The wedding in any of the "betwixt and between" hours—5:30, 6, 6:30—may be convenient from some point of view, chiefly for those who find it inconvenient to attend a wedding in the daytime, but from a sartorial point of view, no hour is so confusing. What to wear at a wedding at 6 o'clock—this is extremely problematic for the guests. And especially is this true if there are to be a reception and a wedding feast of some kind afterward. The wedding before 6:30 is a day wedding, and one should therefore wear day clothes. And while these day clothes may seem quite correct for attendance at the ceremony, they seem inappropriate when one has to wear them to the reception or dinner or supper somewhat later.

So, by all means, let me urge you to consider your plans for choosing this inconvenient and enigmatic hour. Your guests will thank you, for it will make their dressing problem vastly easier.

Household Hints

If old newspapers are burned in dustbins occasionally the bins will not collect grease so readily.

It is advisable to have a piece of newspaper ready when there is anything sooty to handle.

For a cough cut a Spanish onion in slices, then place a layer of brown sugar between each one. Cover and allow to stand for a few hours. Then take the juice.

An old saucer placed in a saucepan will prevent puddings from burning and sticking to the bottom.

In damp weather rub your shoes with olive or linseed oil or vaseline to save the leather from cracking.

New calico, prints and lace curtains are hard to wash owing to the lime in them, but if you give them a night's soaking in warm water in which two or three handfuls of salt have been dissolved the lime is freed and the task lightened.

BROAD LIST IN WALL ST. HAS GOOD GAINS

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange appeared to have recovered its equilibrium for the moment, at least, in the opening transactions today, as trading was resumed after [illegible] of [illegible] violent scenes in the Exchange's history.

A broad advance set in directly after the opening gong, and trading was in sharply reduced volume, although many blocks of 5000 to 15,000 shares changed hands.

SELLING ABSORBED

The [illegible] buying advice of [illegible] leading bankers published both yesterday and this morning, together with optimistic statements by several steel company heads and the decline of $167,000,000 in brokers loans appeared to have bolstered up speculative confidence in remarkable fashion.

A little more distress selling appeared during the early trading on the part of weak holders whose accounts did not get cleaned out yesterday, but this was readily absorbed.

[illegible] and confused [illegible] at yesterday's opening. [illegible] the volume swelled as the session progressed, more than 1,000,000 shares changing hands in the first half hour.

GAINS INCREASED

Eastman Kodak soon increased its gain to 12¼ and A. M. Byers jumped 19 points, Industrial Alcohol and Standard Gas moved up 7, Republic Steel 6 and Johns Manville, Norfolk & Western, American Power & Light, American & Foreign Power, National Cash Register, General Electric, Radio and others 3 to 4 points. U. S. Steel, however, after selling up 1 [illegible] points, [illegible], and American Can [illegible] a couple of points.

[illegible] Fox Film [illegible] 6 [illegible] First National Stores [illegible] Crucible Steel, Webster Eisenlohr, Industrial Rayon and Southern Railway lost 2 to [illegible].

Mohaw Soars in Boston Stock Exchange Trading

Mixed prices showed on the Boston Stock Exchange today with trading active. Mohawk soared [illegible] 7 points to 59. Engineers gained [illegible] at 35 and New Haven [illegible] at 122.

[illegible] 113 [illegible] United Fruit dropped 3½ at 60 and Union Twist Drill was down 2½ at 50.

Allen & Fisher added 3½ at 15. St. Mary's jumped 3 at 33 and Anaconda [illegible] at 103.

Point or more losses were shown by the following issues: Cities Service, American & Continental, Economy Stores, First National Stores, Granby, International Carriers, New England Telephone, United Shoe and U. S. Electric Power.

Gains of a point or more were shown by the following stocks: Utilities Equity preferred, U. S. Overseas, Shawmut, Securities Incorporated Equity, Calumet & Hecla, Copper Range, Eastern Gas & Fuel, General Capital and North Butte.

EASY MONEY AIDS BUSINESS

The current temporary hesitation in business conditions does not warrant stock liquidation, Gage P. Wright, New York economist, declares in a review of business and financial conditions in the current issue of the Business Economic Digest.

"The easier tendency in money rates has continued during the past week," Mr. Wright points out, "and it is expected that this condition will have an important, favorable bearing on the construction industry and business in general. Although there is nothing in the current situation of the steel and automobile industries to cause undue alarm of impending depression, these lines represent the chief points of lagging in general business. Substantial placing of orders for rails, however, is helping the steel industry."

With regard to conditions in the security markets, Mr. Wright says that "it is timely again to point out the fact that wide fluctuations in stock prices should be expected, and that the relative price changes will appear more severe when measured in terms of points rather than the true measurement in per cent.

"Throughout the last three weeks, money rates—both time and call—have declined substantially, and bond prices have been quick to reflect this easier tone in money.

"Naturally, an increased amount of interest has turned to the probable course of bond prices. Although authorities are of the belief that bond prices should work higher, there is not at the present time any indication which would warrant any generally broad buying program of such fixed income securities.

"Our weighted averages of authorities' opinions continue bullish on recommended stocks and bonds for the long pull, and give indications which would justify investors in exercising a fair amount of their [illegible] buying power at this time."

STEEL ORDERS ARE LARGER

Structural steel orders the past week amounted to 58,000 tons, against 23,000 the week previous. Inquiry was 38,000 tons, against 49,000 the week before.

Horace S. Wilkson, chairman of Crucible Steel Corp., when questioned about his promise of a dividend increase earlier this year said, "We will declare a stock dividend at our meeting on Dec. 16. This action will be regulated by our earnings statement."

John A. Topping, chairman of Republic Iron & Steel Co., said: "Business is exceedingly good, considering the fact that we have had several years of excessive demand. I feel that the present recession is a seasonal one, although somewhat belated. I see no reason why we should not look forward in the future to a normal demand."

Willis L. King, vice-president of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., said: "The steel industry has had a very prosperous year in 1929 with every prospect of a good demand for next year. Operations of Jones & Laughlin are better than 85 p. c. of capacity and I believe it will be about the low point of the current quarter."

Pres. James A. Campbell of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., said: "Business is good. Shipments this month are larger than last month. Demand has been holding up well, better than I expected. Prices are not quite so strong. They have been tapering off in two or three items, but not seriously."

Grains Are Higher in Chicago Market

Chicago, Oct. 25 (INS)—Grains were higher today. Wheat was up ⅛ to 1⅛c; corn ⅛c down to ⅛c up, and oats ⅛c to ½c higher. Prices: Wheat—Dec. 121, March 129¼; May 133.

Corn—Dec. 91⅝-⅞; March 97⅛; May 99⅞-100.

Oats—Dec. 49⅛-⅜; March 52⅛; May 53⅞-⅞.

Industry Says Good Motors Are Bargains

Chrysler Speaks Plainly; Has $55,800,000 Cash; Lull Natural

—By B. C. Forbes—

DETROIT, Oct. 25—Automobile manufacturers have cut their operations to check overproduction. They frankly admit that demand has slackened. They declare they foresaw such a development in consequence of the unusual summer buying.

B. C. Forbes

Motor leaders, however, are confident that the lull will prove only temporary. And it is admitted that the larger companies are in excellent financial shape.

It will interest many to learn that responsible automotive men are buying the best motor shares at current quotations. They are convinced that there are better bargains available now than in many moons and that so rare an opportunity is unlikely to last long.

Ford operations have been curtailed to permit of certain improvements being made in model A. All talk of a six-cylinder Ford is ridiculed here. I am told that Ford bodies are to be made three inches wider and that a longer wheel base is contemplated. Unofficially I learn that the appearance of the front of the car will be somewhat changed.

That production will be completely stopped or that there will be revolutionary changes is emphatically denied. The fact is that the demand for the Ford product has exceeded Mr. Ford's rosiest expectation. His present objective simply is to give the public still better value for their money.

I visited the Chrysler plant, and, with the aid of General Sales Manager Joe Fields, succeeded in locating Walter Chrysler up to his eyes in work in a distant corner of the factory—there isn't a single mechanical operation that Chrysler, a physical and mental giant, can't show a workman how to do the right way.

Mr. Chrysler's breezy greeting was, "If you've come to see me for coming bull in buying and promptly trimmed production sails in good time. Thus he can show a wonderfully strong financial position.

His balance sheet, as of December 30 last, shows this wonderfully comforting item: "Cash on hand, on deposit and on call, $55,830,153." At the end of December that same item didn't reach $50,000,000. Since then current assets are up almost $10,000,000, while current liabilities have decreased. Surplus now stands at $59,619,865 against $48,225,210 at the end of 1928. Net income for nine months is $24,730,419, against $21,786,276 a year ago.

"The automobile industry as a whole is in better shape than it has been at any time since 1921," declared Mr. Chrysler. "It is under better control. There are no unwieldy inventories. Organization is much more efficient. The value given the public is far greater than it was five years ago. The industry is now run on a conservative basis—run very soundly. At the same time it is very alert, very progressive.

"No industry gives the public fuller or franker information about production, sales and financial results. The industry is an example to other industries in this respect."

something to help along the bears in Wall Street you've come to the wrong party. They would like to see us automobiles manufacturers and every other industry bust, but we can't oblige them."

Mr. Chrysler, who always believes in looking ahead, sensed the

He added: "Buying power of the American people is now so well distributed and the desire for owning individual transportation is so universal that it is impossible to figure out how the industry could suffer any prolonged period of depression. Of course, there are peaks and valleys in every live industry—and the motor industry is very much alive.

"Sure, it is true that there is a modest let up in buying at the moment; it was because we foresaw this that we curtailed production to meet it. All motor companies, with the exception perhaps of a few small ones, have plenty of money. In short, the automobile industry is as sound as a gold dollar."

Colby Must Face Desertion Charge

Merrimac, Oct. 25—Police Chief James P. Donahue returned last night from Bridgeport, Ct., having in his custody Preston Colby, 31, former resident of this town who was arested for the Essex county authorities on an indictment warrant charging desertion of his three children. Colby was lodged in the Lawrence jail and will later be arraigned in the superior court to [illegible]

MARKET VIEWS OF LEADERS CHEERFUL

Jules S. Bache: "I think we saw the worst yesterday and probably the lowest prices for a great many months to come. Brokers' loans decreased $167,000,000 under last week. I believe next week we will find they have been reduced to the point where they will be $750,000,000 below last week's figure. This will lead to a big investment movement instead of throwing money on call in the street. Naturally, this will react to the great advantage of business and industry generally. I do not believe stocks will sell at their price of two months ago for a long, long time."

Leonard P. Ayres, vice-president of Cleveland Trust Co.: "The tremendous development of industrial and natural resources and solidification of banking interests make the United States probably the only nation in the world which could withstand the shock of a $3,000,000,000 paper loss on the stock exchange in a single day without serious effect to the average citizen."

R. W. McNeel, director of McNeel's Service: "There is no doubt that the crisis of the stock market is over. There are times when it is perfectly obvious that securities are on bottom. Yesterday was one of those days. The market has returned to levels where, temporarily at least, even those who measure values, by the yardstick of earnings, dividends and income return can find bargains among our finest stocks. They can now buy many stocks at ten times earning power, not at 30 times earning power where many of them were selling some weeks ago."

Blythe & Co.: "We believe that Thursday's low prices represent in many cases, the lowest levels likely to be reached in 1929. Taking a long range view, the prospects of a severe business depression appear remote. Most leading industrial companies are in splendid cash position, inventories are not burdensome in most lines of business, the banking situation is thoroughly sound. Stocks which are selling for 10 to 15 times 1929 earnings, pay reasonable dividends, well secured, have good prospects for 1930, may probably be bought with confidence at levels approximating Thursday's low."

Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corp.: "I cannot see any reason for all this pessimism. In the stock market, perhaps, we needed some correction. I think it has been greatly overdone, however. If the matter adjusts itself quickly it will have only a temporary effect upon business."

Jere A. Downs, president Boston Stock Exchange, just returned from a trip abroad, states: "I haven't had time yet to satisfy myself of conditions, but am inclined to feel we have seen the worst of the present break."

James J. Phelan, Hornblower & Weeks: "We are advising in newspapers throughout the country that present conditions are favorable for advantageous investment in standard American securities. That explains our feeling as to the break in the stock market."

J. F. Loree, president of Delaware & Hudson Railroad: "The present stock activity, I feel, will not affect business in general. The railroad business is in a very healthy condition."

George M. Reynolds, chairman of executive committee of Continental Illinois Trust & Savings Bank: "Business is good and prosperity will continue. Just because of this flurry in the stock market I don't believe business is going to the demnition bow-wows. It looks now as if the bottom had been reached and the turning point was due."

NAME A NEW PRESIDENT

Following the recent annual meeting held at Washington, the National Electrical Manufacturers Association announces the election of Clarence L. Collens as president and the appointment of A. W. Berresford as managing director succeeding Alfred E. Waller, resigned.

Mr. Collens, who is president of the Reliance Electric & Engineering Co., has now served the electrical manufacturing industry as the head of every association of which he has been a member, including the Electric Power Club, Electrical Manufacturers' Council and the Electrical Manufacturers' Club. Mr. Collens served as vice-president of the policies division of N. E. M. A. since the association's organization, three years ago.

Mr. Berresford, the new managing director of N. E. M. A. is president of the American Engineering Council and has been prominently identified with the electrical manufacturing industry for many years. He is past president of the A. M. E. S., the Electrical Manufacturers Club and the A. I. E. E. Mr. Berresford was formerly vice-president and general manager of the Cutler-Hammer Manufacturing Co. and vice-president of what is now the Kelvinator Corporation.

TREBLE PROFITS IN TEN YEARS

Earnings of the First National Bank of the City of New York for the year ended October 4 were $23,464,000, equal to $234.64 a share on the $10,000,000 of capital stock outstanding, according to figures compiled by Gilbert Elliott & Co., specialists in bank and insurance stocks.

These figures established a new high record for all times. Of the total of $234.64 a share, $54 was earned by the bank, while the balance of $90 represents the dividend paid by the First Security Co., the stock of which is owned share for share by the bank's stockholders. The stock is now quoted in the open market around $8000 a share.

During the past 10 years the earning power of this institution has more than trebled. This has been accomplished entirely without additional capital contributions by stockholders. Earnings per share have been as follows:

1920	91.39
1922	152.92
1924	142.41
1926	136.45
1927	153.50
1928	198.85
1929 (Year ended Oct. 4)	234.64

For the first time, First National's surplus and undivided profits have crossed the $100,000,000 mark, now amounting to $102,357,300 as compared with $97,773,200 on June 29.

With surplus and undivided profits now equal to more than 10 times capital, the firm states, it seems logical to expect a stock dividend in the near future. First National's last capital increase was in 1901, at which time capital was increased from $500,000 to $10,000,000, the present amount, by stockholders' subscription at par. At the same time, however, the bank paid a 1900 per cent extra cash dividend which provided the stockholders with funds to exercise their rights, virtually making it a 1900 per cent stock dividend.

SEADROME TO AID OCEAN AIR TRAFFIC

INTEREST in transoceanic plane service has been revived by an announcement during the current week of the launching of a model seadrome. While tests will be conducted with a scale model, there is no doubt but what the practicability of the project can be determined. Should it be deemed successful, a full sized seadrome is to be built and located at a midway point between New York and Bermuda, which will break the trip into two laps.

The idea of the seadrome is to provide the facilities of a landing field at sea, huge floating platforms that will be anchored at regular intervals. The size will be such that the seadrome will accommodate any type of plane in the matter of taking off. The average distance needed by transport ships is little more than many small planes so powerful are the present day multi-motor installations. Likewise with braking mechanisms developed as they are, the largest ships may be brought to a stop within a comparatively short distance.

There will be many persons who will object to sending land planes loaded with passengers over long stretches of water. The main thought of those who are projecting the experiment is to place seadromes at conveniently located distances. Plans for an Atlantic route estimate that a base will be needed every 400 miles. This is no longer than many scheduled on regular operating transport lines. Furthermore, there would be no reason why amphibian planes could not be utilized. Some ships of this type could stand ordinary seas in case of a forced landing.

Should anything of this nature occur, it must be remembered that with means of communication as highly developed as they are, assistance would be on the way almost as quickly as an operator aboard the craft reported need for it. That complete emergency equipment such as spare ships would be kept at every point goes without saying. Flying straight courses guided by all the highly developed means that exist today, a plane would rarely be more than two hours flying time from any control station.

At the present time, at least, a much more feasible plan would seem to hinge around the use of mammoth dirigibles. The recent trip around the world made by a ship of this type is ample proof of the possibility of regular oceanic passenger service. All kinds of weather conditions were encountered and successfully passed and projected flight schedules were even followed rather closely.

The possibilities of such a system are, if tests prove satisfactory, enormous. There is nothing much to fear from the standpoint of actual operation of the plane if engineering genius can cope successfully with the problems attendant upon anchoring the floating platform fields at sea. The only drawback seems to be in the question of operating expense. Construction and installation of a sufficient number of these seadromes would entail an enormous investment.

A large staff would be required at each station, not alone for the care of the base itself. Then, the necessarily limited number of persons that each plane would carry, as well as the narrow available field of patrons, would all tend to force a high passenger tariff. It is rather difficult to figure out adequate returns from original investment, even with an auxiliary freight and mail service also operated. For business men such a service would prove most valuable with a saving of several days each way. However, the limits of baggage capacity would seem to eliminate the use of planes for tourists.

The main advantage of such a means of transportation lies largely in the double factor of safety present. An airship is not dependent upon engine power except for purposes of rapid propulsion, being supported by bouyant gases. Thus, in case of motor failure repairs may be made without the necessity of landing.

Another point in the favor of these liners of the air is their carrying capacity. With ample space available, passengers are offered more than a single chair and it is the added service which should make this form of air travel popular with certain classes. Baggage capacity also adds to the convenience of these ships, as their load-carrying ability is so great that they may some day be put into freight service.

Tests are being conducted at the present time in England on a new model dirigible that is powered with oil-burning engines. While the substitute of helium gas for the highly inflammable hydrogen that was formerly used has greatly reduced fire hazards in airship operations, the use of a fuel less dangerous than gasoline adds still further to their safety.

It is claimed that much larger craft than the type which made the world flight will be built shortly, capable of carrying a hundred or more persons in addition to the crew. Such ships could operate with a fairly reasonable passenger rate, providing comfortable sleeping and dining quarters. It is easy to believe that their patronage would be large, and the ability of these ships to ride above a storm makes possible a year 'round service. Ocean travel is very disagreeable at certain seasons, and such a mode of transportation would be a welcome change.

WE believe that present conditions are favorable for advantageous investment in standard American securities.

Many Stocks at Panic Levels

No matter what description the bankers may utilize, the market yesterday passed through the worst panic in history. Had not the concentrated support come in when it did there would have been prices for many stocks at levels which even the most pessimistic bear could hardly have conceived. The bankers were forced to take drastic action and throw in tremendous supporting orders to prevent a most serious collapse of the entire financial structure. That they did, however, argues heavily in favor of the market, at least for the standard, gilt-edged issues. To think that the entire readjustment has been completed throughout the list is unwarranted. Now that the attitude is to discriminate more carefully, whatever stocks may be at inflated levels will soon be brought down to proper prices. Nevertheless, the lowest prices of yesterday for a great number of stocks represented panic levels.

Picking Good Stocks to Buy

After such a drastic collapse as has been witnessed, only a comparative handful of people and institutions are still able to participate in the bargain-counter which undoubtedly exists in various issues. Indiscriminate purchases even at present levels will prove as foolhardy as they did when prices were booming. The old-line, standard stocks, those of tested merit, established earnings, good prospects, dividend payers and responsibly sponsored, once again attain leadership as most attractive purchases.

There is still a congestion of securities which will prevent a repetition of the broad, upward advance.

New Groups to Come Into Their Own

Now that deflation has been proven as likely an occurence as inflation in the highly-exploited groups, new sections of the market will now enjoy rightful attention. Groups which had passed through vicious depreciation for months while the more volatile, exploitable issues were star performers, will now attract investment attention at first and later undoubtedly will bring about renewed speculative activity. In such groups as the oils and rails, for example, at least the investor and speculator has a background of substantial earnings and bright prospects. In the motors, too, despite their unpopularity, worthwhile investment buying will be forthcoming.

Steel Proves Itself Leader

Reversal of Reserve Credit Policy Expected

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—The intimation by Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank and a director of the Federal Reserve Bank in New York, that the next change in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate policy will be a revision downward is an advanced harbinger of a reversal of policy.

When and if the Federal Reserve reverses itself, economically illiterate critics will doubtless attack the authorities for inconsistency.

To do so would be nonsensical, for the very essence of proper central banking policy is inconsistency. A central banking authority can never follow a single policy for an unduly extended period. It is forever destined to act as a stabilizer, off-setting extravagances and violent movements in either direction. That is the nature of its function.

Unlike private financiers, it cannot embark on a constructive policy, intended to see specific new ventures carried to a successful conclusion. The role of the Federal Reserve is rather like that of a traffic cop, seeking to keep order and to avoid congestion on the highways of credit.

A central banking agency always has a prejudice in favor of normalcy. It is opposed alike to violent booms and violent depressions. Its goal is stability.

Inasmuch as the major objective of the system since as early as November 1927 has been to retard the excessive flow of credit into speculative channels, the federal reserve authorities will doubtless feel in a mood to modify their restrictive policies as soon as they are convinced that the danger of unbridled bull speculation has passed. The federal reserve is not concerned with the level of stock prices but only with the uses of credit in an attempt to retard the absorption of credit by the stock use of the Morgan-First National group on the floor of the Stock Exchange was rushed to the center of the Steel crowd and entered bids for huge blocks of Steel common. Once the word got around that Steel common, the old reliable, was meeting support, the entire market entered its recovery.

Missouri-Pacific Prospects Bright

PEOPLE who are close to the Missouri Pacific situation declare that this road has an earning power of close to $15 a share, inclusive of subsidiary profits, which may be disclosed in the next year or so. Even on the basis of the increased common capitalization incidental to wiping out of the preferred dividend accruals this year may show close to $8 a share, it is stated. The management has been able to effect substantial economies and with maintenance of only the present gross net income is expected to show considerable improvement.

market the federal reserve has been more or less consistently helping to make money dearer for nearly two years. Now that dear money is hurting business in some lines, especially construction and also in the installment trades, and since commodity prices have been tumbling to new low levels, the federal reserve should be on the alert for signs of a change in speculative conditions when they can safely reverse their policies.

Not since the lowering of the rediscount rate in August, 1927, has the local reserve bank reduced its rediscount rate. In the interim there have been four successive rises, bringing the local rate from 3½ to 6 per cent. It is logical to assume with Mr. Mitchell that the next revision will be downward. Such a change would be a helpful gesture to sagging lines of business which have been harmed by prevailing high interest rates.

The recent decline in open market rates has been in the realm of speculative credit—in time and demand loans to brokers. The excessive rate on time loans has been more disturbing to domestic and foreign business than the rediscount rate. The Federal Reserve, of course, can affect the rate on money through its own open market policy. It has been easing up the situation in recent weeks through heavy purchases of acceptances. This has been in part offset by a decline in rediscounts.

Ordinarily, if guided solely by seasonal considerations, the Federal Reserve would reduce its open market commitments after the peak of commercial and currency needs have been met by the end of the year. On the other hand if it desires to emphasize a reversal of credit policy it can abstain from reducing its open market commitments by the full amount customary for the season of liquidation. As well the Federal Reserve can loosen the [illegible] market by purchasing Government securities.

If the liquidation in the stock market succeeds in bringing down brokers loans the Federal Reserve [illegible] will feel more in a mood to yield to the demand for easier credit conditions.

Referring to the competition of the new South with its cheap labor as dramatized by the Gastonia incident, John J. Leary, outstanding labor reporter, in conversation denies that the low paid labor of the South is really cheap. The cheapness of labor, of course, depends on efficiency, skill and turnover rather than on the weekly rate paid. The new South will be far more prosperous, in my opinion, when it seeks to place a higher valuation on its human assets.

The market setback exaggerates the current recession in business. After an unseasonable active summer, the general business pace has moderated. Curtailment has been under way for at least a month in some important lines, including construction and automobiles, and the export trade has not been making its usual seasonal gains.

Boys Arrested

Lowell, Oct. 25—Three boys, two aged 15, and one 11, were arrested last night for complicity in larceny and breaking and entering into a store in Kinsman st., where merchandise and money were taken.

BOSTON TRADE IS FAVORABLE

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston: Favorable conditions continue in retail trade and while there are signs of a slowing down in some industries a large volume of business is moving. Wool prices are firmer.

While there has not been much increase in the amount of business transacted, inquiries are increasing and there is a better sentiment in the trade.

MILLS MORE ACTIVE.

Mill conditions still leave much room for improvement, but slight increases in operating schedules are noted.

The goods market has been slow, but it is expected that the cutting trades will increase their orders before long. There has been a swing in demand from woolens to worsteds and mills producing the latter goods have much the better business at present.

Worsted yarns are active and some of the larger mills have plenty of orders on hand. New England mills are purchasing the lower grades of raw cotton in fair sized lots as the price trend continues downward. Mill conditions are improving slowly as the call for cotton goods increases and conditions of competition from other sections grows slightly less. Sales of cotton yarns have been good.

Spinners in some cases are advancing their quotations and are not anxious to book orders much ahead at present prices. The demand for dry goods has been light and prices have been unchanged.

CHEMICALS ACTIVE.

Chemicals are active and manufacturers are exceeding last year's volume of sales. Dyestuffs are moderately active, but tanning materials are rather slow. No material price changes are reported. Paints are firm with a fairly good demand.

The sale of building materials has been moderate and lumber has been rather quiet. Competition is keen and quotations tend to be lower. The general cost of construction is slightly higher than a year ago.

Sales of pig iron have been small and the market is very quiet. There is not much new business for finished steel, but some fair sized orders have been received for structural purposes. Tanners are buying but few hides and the market is declining. Calfskins are quiet.

The call for leather is reflecting slower conditions in the shoe manufacturing centers. Upper and sole leathers are still quite well sold up. New orders for shoes are light. There is a good demand for hardwoods from the furniture manufacturers, particularly from the producers of radio cabinets.

Holyoke Power Co. Earnings Lowered

Holyoke Water Power Co. reports for the yer ended Sept. 30, 1929, net earnings after charges, including depreciation and taxes, of $378,752, equal to $15.78 a share on 24,000 shares of $100 par stock. This compares with net a year ago of $450,044, equal to $18.12 a share on the same stock.

TICKER TALK

Wire House Opinion

Partners of leading brokerage houses met last night at the offices of Hornblower & Weeks, one of the large wire houses in Wall Street. The brokers scattered without any comment, but the writer learned that they believed the worst was over. When the biggest bankers in the Street feel that way, one can laugh it off.

A Bullish Sign

One of the really bullish developments was the announcement of Hornblower & Weeks that the firm would run an advertisement in 48 newspapers throughout the country today, advising the public to buy stocks. The advertisement isn't couched in those words, but that is the gist of its text. This house published the same statement in 1921, 1923 and 1926 when the market was breaking and sharp rallies followed.

Good News Paramount

It was pointed out that good news was coming from all quarters. Brokers' loans were down $167,000,000, money rates were reduced, the bond market was stronger and altogether the speculative situation looked better than it had been in several months. That is, technically. We grant that it doesn't bring any consolation to the little fellow whose margin account has been wiped out.

Buying vs. Selling

Spectator must credit to Jim Payne the shrewdest comment heard on the market yesterday. It was after the close, while the brokers were assembled.

"Call today's trading selling, if you will," said Payne. "But don't forget that there is a buyer for every seller. Never before have I seen so much stock bought in one session. To me it means that stocks are passing from weak into strong hands."

Fewer Margin Calls

The matter of margin calls was not even mentioned at the meeting of brokers. While the subject was neglected, the brokers seemed cheerful, which indicated to this writer that fewer margin calls had been sent out last night than in several days. Spectator doesn't look for much forced selling today. Most of the weak accounts of small traders have been closed out, it seems, and the rich men and bankers probably will control today's trading.

Brokers' Loans

The drop of $167,000,000 in the total of brokers' loans is a questionable factor, as far as today's market is concerned. Coming upon the heels of Charles E. Mitchell's statement that brokerage loans are a negligible factor, Spectator doubts that the decline will affect the market in an important way.

Lamont's Statement

"Not fundamental, only technical," was the gist of the statements from bankers. "There seems to be some disturbed selling on the floor of the exchange," said Thomas W. Lamont, senior partner in the J. P. Morgan firm.

Mitchell Talks Again

At the height of the stock exchange demoralization, Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of National City Bank, announced, for the benefit of whoever cared, that he still stood behind his statement made upon his return from Europe, and that there was nothing to worry about. Maybe there was nothing for Mr. Mitchell to worry about, but that didn't prevent ruined traders from getting gray hair.

Credit Situation

This won't help the ruined speculator, either, but the statement of the Federal Reserve indicated that the position of member banks proves the credit situation to be basically strong. But the reserve failed to reduce the rediscount rate, which might have brightened the business picture.

Bargains Go Begging

There was no rush to buy stocks that looked dirt cheap, for the simple reason that the public has been thoroughly "cleaned out." At current levels, however, Spectator doesn't hesitate to recommend purchase of stocks like U. S. Steel, American Can, Eastman Kodak, National Biscuit, American Telephone and Western Union. It is a long time since General Motors has seen anything like the current buying, and it is difficult to vision lower prices for this issue.

Oils and Rails

On the [illegible] that stocks which took no part in the sharp [illegible] of a few weeks ago should move upward first, there is likely to be good buying soon in oils and rails. Spectator [illegible] would look out for signs of such activity on the upside.

Cutten Fisher Losses

It was common gossip around the Street yesterday that Arthur Cutten, big Chicago speculator, who has claimed to be bullish all through the decline, has been hard hit by the market cataclysm. From one quarter came a report that a Detroit group, presumably the Fisher interests, had lost millions in the decline of Baldwin Locomotive. Of course, it was impossible to confirm the rumors, but if these groups told the truth when they denied they were selling stocks, the break certainly [illegible]. Cutten has been buying Montgomery Ward, it is said, in an attempt to halt the [illegible] of the stock, and his holdings represent heavy losses.

Coppers Hold Up

Conviction that the [illegible] price for copper can be [illegible] responsible for the strength of Anaconda, and most of the other copper stocks. There was talk of a "killing" in Kennecott, but in well informed quarters it was said that the overnight profits in this stock were spread over several groups.

Sullivan Attacks P. S. A. Candidates

Speaking at rallies in South Boston, Charlestown and Dorchester last evening, Henry J. Sullivan, candidate for the Boston School Committee, asked his audiences to consider well into whose hands they place the education of their children. He charged that certain candidates are seeking the office merely to carry out the slogan "To the victor belongs the spoils."

Sullivan continued: "It is incumbent on the voters to repudiate the P. S. A. candidates, the agents who would be used to foster the introduction and dissemination of works intended to undermine the home and the family."

Taken to Jail in Default of Bail

Newburyport, Oct. 25—Unable to furnish $500 bail required for his appearance in the district court after appealing a sentence for carrying a gun without a permit, Guy W. Lombard of Salem was taken to the Salem jail by a State patrolman after spending the night in the police station here.

MORE BANKS TO SELL PUBLIC INSURANCE

Savings banks that write life insurance in Massachusetts will be increased in number November 1 from 10 to 13 by the addition of the Lowell Institution for Savings of Lowell, the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, and the Grove Hall Savings Bank of Boston, which will be respectively the 11th, 12th and 13th mutual savings banks in this State to begin selling this form of insurance on their own responsibility. [illegible] "agency banks" accepting business for other mutual savings institutions.

The 10 present writing banks of Massachusetts are: Whitman Savings Bank of Whitman; Peoples Savings Bank, Brockton; Berkshire County Savings Bank, Pittsfield; City Savings Bank, Pittsfield; Lynn Five Cents Savings Bank; Lynn Institution for Savings; North Adams Savings Bank; Cambridgeport Savings Bank, Cambridge; Massachusetts (formerly South End) Savings Bank, Boston, and Waltham Savings Bank.

The Boston Five Cents Savings Bank has been doing a life insurance business as an agency since July 18, 1924. During that period of [illegible] months its insurance department has delivered over the counter policies amounting to about $1,300,000, representing about [illegible] policies. The Grove Hall Savings Bank began accepting life insurance business as an agent-bank May 1, 1916, and the Lowell Institution for Savings May 11, 1927. When the Grove Hall Savings Bank entered this field there were but four banks in the State that had actually established insurance departments, and six when the Lowell bank entered it.

"One of the greatest fields for public usefulness for mutual savings banks" is the way that a representative of the largest mutual savings bank in New England which handles this insurance characterizes savings bank life insurance, and this estimate is supported by statements of whole families coming into a bank to take out insurance.

"The combination of straight life insurance with bank savings is one that the mutual savings banks of the State are selling a great deal, combining systematic saving with the protection that life insurance gives. It provides for a stated payment into the bank each month by the depositor, part of the sum going to meet the cost of straight life insurance, the rest being credited to his savings account. The thrill in this plan of insurance is described by Miss Alice H. Grady, deputy commissioner of savings bank insurance of the Commonwealth as follows:

"Take, for instance, a person [illegible] years old who deposits $7.40 a month, amounting in a year to $88.80, or in 10 years to $888. He is insured for $1000 from the time he makes the first payment of $7.40, and at the end of 10 years, if he chooses to draw it out, he receives [illegible]. In a few words, he has been insured for $1000 for this time and he has received in cash [illegible] more than he put in.

"But suppose that he dies at the end of nine years. His estate would get $1000 under his policy plus [illegible] that is in the savings bank. The explanation is simple. The interest on his deposits more than pays for his insurance. The banks are selling a great part of their insurance on this plan."

The total amount of savings bank life insurance in force in Massachusetts is approximately [illegible], representing about 84,000 policies.

Hero Medal for Steamer's Fireman

Montreal, Oct. 25—For leaping into the mid-Atlantic and saving the life of a woman passenger, Hendricks Brown, negro fireman of the S. S. Canadian Forester, has been awarded the Royal Canadian Humane Society's bronze medal. The presentation was made on behalf of the society by W. E. Teakle, general manager, Canadian National Steamships, in the presence of the heads of all departments.

Extra Dividend Ordered on Otis

Directors of Otis Co. declared an extra dividend of $4 and a quarterly dividend of $1 on common stock payable Nov. 15. Treasurer [illegible] says: "Directors will expect to consider question of paying quarterly dividends on the 15th days of February, May, August and November, but as yet do not designate the quarterly dividend as regular in view of the uncertainties still existing in the textile business."

Fractures His Leg Playing Football

Lowell, Oct. 25—William Huntley, 13, of 783 Bridge st., sustained a fractured left leg while playing "scrub" football with a group of schoolboy companions in a field near Jewett and Hildreth st. He was taken to the Lowell Corporation Hospital for treatment.

LONDON STOCK PRICES RISE

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—Transatlantic stocks showed a better tendency at the opening of the stock exchange today, Wall Street's final rally being responsible for recoveries from the lowest touched in the Street here last night. A good deal of profit-taking took place on speculative issues recently and it was believed losses on yesterday's slump would not be severe.

A feature of the market today was the strength of investment and gilt-edged stocks on the rise of the sterling exchange rate.

The market was of the opinion that a return of further money to London also would bring American balances, while the improving New York exchange rate, which is nearing the old point, appears to envisage gold shipments from New York to Europe, paving the way for a reduction of the bank rate.

Mystery Shooting Still Under Probe

Natick, Oct. 25—The mysterious shooting of James Goddard, who claimed he was wounded in the back of the head by a bullet fired from behind him in the garage at his camp at Non Such pond, was made even more mysterious when State detectives and local police made a thorough search of the garage and found no trace of the bullet and no blood.

State Detective Edward J. Sheehan and Edward P. O'Neill, assigned to the case by Dist.-Atty. Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County, said that they were baffled thus far, but will continue their investigation.

Manufacturer Held in $30,000 Theft

Worcester, Oct. 25—David M. Israel, a Front st. garment manufacturer, was arraigned in Superior Criminal Court on a secret indictment charging him with the larceny of approximately $30,000 from the Worcester Bank and Trust Company by borrowing funds on accounts and representations which the bank alleges were not true.

Israel entered a plea of not guilty and waived the reading of the indictment. Bail was set at $10,000.

Group Insurance Sought by Union

Lowell, Oct. 25—Street railway union officials here have taken the initiative in a plan to purchase group insurance for all union employes of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, in order to make up the insurance protection lost recently when the company trustees ordered the noncontributory insurance sharply reduced in an attempt to cut expenditures.

Seeks Divorce

Lawrence, Oct. 25—In a divorce suit filed this week at Salem, Mrs. Lucy Butler of this city, on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment, failure to provide, and habits of intoxication.

Stock Clearing Job Finished After All Night Work

After long hours of grueling labor, lasting through the night, the Stock Clearing Corporation was able shortly before 11 a. m. to announce that clearings of all of yesterday's record-breaking transactions, totaling 12,894,600 shares, had been completed. That all houses were able to make deliveries against their sales confirmed the statement issued at the bankers' conference at J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday that no stock exchange houses were being pressed to the wall.

RAND EXPECTS IMPROVEMENT IN MARKET

James H. Rand, Jr., chairman of the board of Remington Rand, which does a gross business of over [illegible] a year and does business of some kind with 80 per cent of the business institutions of the world, believes that the stock market has seen the worst and will from now on show improvement.

He feels that as a result of the stock market crash business both here and abroad will improve, for stock market speculation has in his opinion been the one thing that has hampered business.

He thinks that there will be a slight slowing up of business as a result of the crash, but that this will be temporary and that improvement will follow as the benefit of less indiscriminate speculation begins to make itself felt.

Mr. Rand in analyzing the situation said: "Business prosperity has been increasing for four years, and it is only natural to expect that there will be some recession in business as result of the stock market crash.

"The United States has too large a part of the world's gold supply, and a drop in interest rates in the United States, which will probably result from less speculation, will cause outflow of gold to other countries, helping improve world business and the foreign demand for American-made goods and commodities.

"Construction of large public works by municipalities, counties and states has been brought to a standstill by the high cost of money. It is to be expected that with money cheaper hundreds of millions of dollars of contracts for new construction will be released in the near future.

"I consider that indiscriminate stock market speculation has been ended by the stock market disaster, and it requires seven years for the public to forget a calamity of this kind. Therefore it can be safely assured that the one big great deterrent to industrial progress has been removed by a painful surgical operation.

"The United States occupies a strategic position comparable to that of England after the Napoleonic wars, when with minor ups and downs England experienced 40 years of unprecedented and almost continuous prosperity. The stock market crash means the revival of thrift and application to work.

"As a nation we have the greatest ability to come back. In a nutshell, money will be more plentiful, public construction and residential building will be resumed, and exports will increase. While it will require several months for conditions to stabilize and to convince the country, the United States will undoubtedly enjoy a long period of prosperity because we still maintain our strategic position financially and industrially and because fundamental conditions are sound."

BONDS SEEN AS ATTRACTIVE

After three years of steadily declining interest in the bond market, the tide of buying sentiment has definitely turned in this direction.

This week's United Business Service Report calls attention to the very unusual relationship now existing between bond yields and common stock yields. Instead of bonds yields being from 1 per cent to 2 per cent less than stock yields as was the case for many years, bond yields are actually about 1 per cent higher than the average yield on high grade industrial stocks.

For several months, interest in investment bonds has been completely overshadowed by the high rates obtainable on funds loaned in the "call" market. During the past few weeks, however, a decided change has taken place. Time loans have been as low as 7½ per cent and call money has been offered at 5 per cent.

The American public has indeed become "stock minded" during the past few years. This attitude has seemed justified by the exceptional growth and prosperity of the country, but there is increasing evidence that it has been carried too far. There are now strong indications that a better balance will be struck between fixed income securities and common stocks during the coming year. This will probably be accompanied by a cooling off of enthusiasm for common stocks and a substantial increase in the demand for good bonds and preferred issues.

It does not seem probable, therefore, that bonds with good investment rating will long remain available at prices that yield nearly 6 per cent.

Bad Weather Holds Up Deer Hunting

Bangor, Me., Oct. 25—The kill of deer in the North woods has not been heavy for the past three or four days, due to bad weather conditions. The snowfalls have been damp, turning to slush.

While the foliage is well off the trees, it has been heavy this year and in the hardwood lands there are still dry leaves in "drifts," making the woods "noisy."

Wins Title

Lawrence, Oct. 25—Miss Loretta Burke of 443 Main st., Haverhill, was the winner of the "Miss Charming" title at the weekly dancing party of the Knights of Columbus, held in the organization's headquarters last evening.

Milk Wagon Drivers Will Be Prosecuted

Lawrence, Oct. 25—Inspectors of the State department of labor, who were active during the early months of this year in putting a stop to the employment of young boys of school age on milk wagons as a violation of the Child Labor law, visited the city again today to prosecute five drivers of wagons who are alleged to have used the services of boys.

Temperance—or Prohibition?

At Last the Truth—for All America to Read!

A BOOK of evidence indicating the American national reaction against prohibition and based on the enormous data provided by the Hearst $25,000 Temperance Contest of 1929, in the course of which more than 100,000,000 words on every conceivable phase of the subject were written by the 71,248 contributors.

This is perhaps the most startling and informing treatise on the effects of the prohibition laws that has ever been published.

Understanding of the present prohibition situation at Washington and throughout the nation is impossible without a perusal of this volume.

People of every age, of nearly every nation, of every religion, vocation and social rank have provided material for this astounding revelation of what America really thinks on the subject of Prohibition.

Full texts of the plans that won $33,000 awards are included. There is also a remarkable foreword by William Randolph Hearst, containing his statement on Prohibition, which is considered one of the most significant and powerful statements ever written on the subject.

If you want to know the facts—face the truth. This 400-page book finally and authoritatively reveals it.

You can purchase the book at the office of the Boston American, 5 Winthrop Square, Room 203, or simply use the coupon below, filled out with your name and address, enclose $1 and this remarkable volume will be mailed to you at once.

PREDICTS USE OF COTTON FOR FORMAL WEAR

The inevitable swing of the style pendulum is the chief reason for the return of cotton to fashion, declared Laurice T. Moreland of the Cotton-Textile Institute, in a lecture on the course of fashion in textiles, given by the Merchant's Institute of the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce in the auditorium of the Jordan Marsh Co.

"The great improvement in the designs, the colorings and the weaves of cotton fabrics are also reasons for the present popularity of cotton," said the speaker.

Designers created fabrics of very definite style significance, styles created for interpretation in cottons, not designs based upon those suitable for wools or silks.

"Fast color is essentially a part of successful cottons, for their washability is a great part of their charm. When fast colors were first produced they were in cold colors, rather harsh and far from flattering in tone. The dyers kept experimenting until they achieved fast color in warmer, more becoming colors.

"This year brought cottons to the high-style field, but principally for day time wear, for active sports, including the beach mode and for spectator sports. Next year will find smart cottons most important for formal afternoon and informal evening wear. Many of the new colors and designs are very unusual. Many of the new weaves have achieved outstanding distinction.

"As in other fibres, the colors which will probably be most used are shrimp, which will lead over Capusine shades, orchid and several shades of blue-greens and blues of the turquoise shades.

LEGAL NOTICES

CITY OF BOSTON

CITY ELECTION

City [illegible] Office, October [illegible], 1929.

In accordance with the provisions of the laws governing elections, notice is hereby given that citizens of the City of Boston qualified to vote for city officers will be held in the several polling places designated for the purpose by the Board of Election Commissioners on and all such citizens will on said day, in the several precincts in which they are entitled to vote, give in their votes for Mayor, for two members of the School Committee, and for one member of the City Council in each ward, also in their votes on the following question:

Shall an act passed by the General Court in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-nine entitled "An Act to establish a board of commissioners of school buildings and a department of school buildings in the City of Boston," be accepted.

The polls at said meetings will be opened at six o'clock A. M., and closed at eight o'clock P. M.

Attest:

W. J. DOYLE, [illegible]

RATES FOR ELECTRICITY
THE EDISON ELECTRIC ILLUMINATING COMPANY OF BOSTON

In the matter of a complaint purporting to be signed by more than twenty customers of The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, complaining of the present maximum price of electricity sold and delivered by said company to its household or domestic customers and of an investigation by the Department, upon its own motion, as to the reasonableness and propriety of the prices set forth in the schedules of rates, prices and charges of said company now in effect or on file with the Department for the sale and distribution of electricity in the territory served by it, the Department will hold a public hearing on Thursday, November [illegible], at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at its hearing room, the State House, Boston.

By order of the Department,
ANDREW A. HIGHLANDS
Secretary.

What Mr. Garrett MAY Collect From the City of Boston

MAYOR NICHOLS' signing of the papers means, apparently, that for many years to come the City of Boston will pay former Patrolman Oliver B. Garrett a pension of $87.50 a month.

Garrett is 35 years of age. We wish him joy in his retirement and hope he may live, in the best of health, far beyond threescore years and ten.

But we have been giving some thought to what that will mean to the taxpayers of Boston; as, we suppose, THEY have.

Garrett's pension will amount to $1050 per annum. At the age of 70—unless some future Police Commissioner calls him up for physical examination and then orders his return to duty—he will have collected $36,750.

The Garrett case, all in all, is one of the most amazing in the city's recent history.

The injuries upon which a city physician bases his finding that the young man is "irresponsible," and therefore unfit for duty, were received several years ago.

Other incidents in the Garrett case—his removal from the liquor squad, his detail to patrol duty in the West End, his suspension by his superiors, his demand that he be requested to resign, his performances at the track—are fresh in the public mind.

A strange case!

IS it possible that we have heard the last of it?

A NEW East Boston

What the Tube Will Mean

THE largest project set in motion in the administration of Mayor Nichols will be brought to realization by his successor.

The East Boston tunnel will help the Port of Boston, give EAST Boston a new birth, be of immense value to Lynn and the North Shore in general.

We rejoice, in particular, because of the good this $16,000,000 development will bring to EAST Boston. If any one section of this town has been neglected by City Hall in The last time we listened to our own journeyman, about an Noddle Island.

The Transit Board, which for a generation has been building tunnels and subways, estimates that the East Boston tube will take care of 5,000,000 vehicles, annually. Authorities already are giving thought to the opening of a SECOND tube, beside the first.

Like every other great public work, this one will call for a small army of laborers. But that will be many months from now. Until sometime late in the Summer of next year, the Tunnel "job" will be one of plans and detail. The the past, and treated as some step-children are treated, it is digging is a long way off.

Significance of Dust

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

ASK any housewife what is the greatest nuisance, and she will answer—"Dust."

That is one reason why a housewife's work is never done. She has scarcely finished sweeping the dust when it begins to settle and accumulate over everything once more.

In many countries, dust is a constant breeder of disease, causing ophthalmia, a painful inflammation of the eye.

Dust is another form of dirt which has been euphemistically defined as matter in the wrong place. In coal mines, dust is certainly matter in the wrong place; for at times, and without warning, it produces the most horrible explosions.

For anyone that believes that natural beauty is one of the most precious and inspiring influences upon humanity, it can easily be shown that dust has an important, if not an essential part to play in the world.

CONSIDER the wonderful, beautiful blue shades of both sky and sea. Consider the glorious sunsets which have been observed recently, for example in many parts of southern Europe.

The explanation of these phenomena is—dust. In the last mentioned, the marvelous-colored sunsets have been due to the masses of lava dust recently thrown out by the active volcano, Vesuvius.

Stand in the dark room and open a small crack to let in a ray of sunlight. The sunbeam is filled with floating dust particles. Suppose there were absolutely no dust in the air. In that case, the path of the sunbeam would be totally dark. We should see no ray of light at all!

It is not difficult to prove this, for if you pass a ray of electric light through a long glass cylinder exhausted of dust the interior of the cylinder, when observed from the side, will appear to be filled with a dark cloud.

SUPPOSE, however, that only the larger dust particles have been strained out of the tube and the finer ones remain. Then the interior of the cylinder, when viewed laterally, will appear to be filled with pale light.

The same principle, as Wallace points out, is believed to explain the exquisite blue color of the deep seas and oceans and of many lakes and springs.

The poet Shelley has expressed these scientific phenomena in an oft-quoted verse:

"When the lamp is shattered
The light in the dust lies dead;
When the cloud is scattered,
The rainbow's glory is shed."

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

FOOTBALL is a series of accidents with a grade crossing every 10 yards.

When an irresistible body meets an immovable force the result is a [illegible].

This game is so corrugated and manly that you get hurt thinking about it.

Secretary of War Good and Secretary of Navy Adams met in Pittsburgh while playing golf and talked the game over.

The secretaries were located in a bunker by a reporter with the instinct of a homing pigeon.

They refused to comment on the possibilities of an Army-Navy game for this season.

Secretary Good was exporting divots with giant swings of a mashie-ladle. He said:

"I have nothing to say. But I hope Army wins!"

Secretary Adams had just given his pill the usual salute of 21 deep dish spoons. He said:

"Mr. Good has me three bunkers up. This is no time to talk about sports."

With both secretaries playing golf it looks as if this nation is on a war basis.

We would like to see them play that service game again.

It was the only football game in America in which you were not liable to be bitten by a raccoon coat.

We concede that it was a tough, brutal struggle. But the only safe way to enjoy slugging is by proxy.

The biggest thrills we ever got was when a thousand West Pointers arose in a well-buttoned body and sang, "Old Vassar."

And who can ever forget the Navy cheering section when it bellowed its famous battle song, "Ziegfeld and the Navy Forever."

We shall always remember those enfilading campaigns of Elmer Oliphant as he skirmished the maritime blockade and galloped 80 yards with 11 middies hanging to his starboard ears.

The two services seem to have the same difficulty that is decimating the gridiron, he says:

"A cornet."

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

FOR a mouse the day is a time of peril. Somewhere in a safe corner he has built a nest, soft and warm, with such materials as he has been able to gather; here he lurks during the day.

H. G. Wells

At nightfall he grunts in his turn, and stretches and sallies forth to satisfy his tiny clamoring stomach. The life of a mouse in its physical essence is entirely parallel with that of a man.

The mouse-life is largely spent like the man-life in eating and in toiling in gnawing holes and runs, in collecting nest materials, in foraging for crumbs and suchlike remnants. He probably goes hungry more often than does Mr. Everyman.

These two living creatures are as mechanisms very much alike indeed. Their bodies are such beautiful and wonderful things that to many people it is almost repugnant to approach these palpitating sensitive structures in a coldly calculating mood. And yet if we are to understand them aright that is the mood in which we study them. In that mood alone can we seek the explanation of this perpetual and universal desire that makes the stuffing of food into a hole in our faces the first fact in life, and reconcile the higher aspects of existence with even more sordid realities.

2. WHY WE CALL THESE BODIES MACHINES.

Both the man and the mouse are continually giving out material energy. They are never completely at rest as long as they live; even when they sleep their limbs twitch, their ribs heave and their hearts continue with regular, rhythmical beat.

And, besides these actual movements, there is another way in which they lose energy; their bodies are warm.

A mouse or a man, like any warm object, loses heat continually to the cooler air which surrounds him, but has internal sources of energy which compensate for his loss, so that his temperature is always slightly higher than that of his surroundings.

The need of man and mouse for food is apparent in the greater part of their waking activities. Less conspicuous, but in reality even more urgent, is the need for air. Normally, it is unnecessary to seek that.

Always, almost unconsciously, a mammal is inhaling and exhaling air. It hardly realizes the necessity of that until under some exceptional condition the supply is cut off and suffocation begins.

Finally, we find various matters passing out of a mammalian body, matters other than the mere undigested residue of his food.

We can measure the amount of food that a man or an animal consumes over a given period of time, and we can measure the energy yielded during the same period. If we burn an equal weight of similar food in a suitable apparatus and find out how much energy its combustion yields, and if this value is equal to the energy yielded by the experimental subject, then evidently the living organism, so far as its energy-output is concerned, is really and precisely a combustion engine.

Such experiments have been performed. A man has been shut for a time in a small compartment, so constructed that the energy he gave out, as heat or otherwise, could be accurately measured. He was fed on a weighed amount of food of known composition and the energy actually yielded was compared with that which would have been obtained had the food been simply burnt. Such experiments have been made repeatedly, both with man and animals.

The following figure were obtained by Atwood, who worked with a human subject:

A man was shut in a calorimeter (heat-energy measurer) for 19 periods of 24 hours each; on the average, he gave out 2682 large calories in each period, and ate an amount of food which would yield if burned 2688 calories. (A large calorie—there are several sorts of calorie—is the amount of heat required to raise one litre of water from 0 degrees to 1 degree centigrade.)

The agreement is good. The two sums differ by only two per cent, which is well within the margin of error of the methods employed. Numerous other experiments have yielded equally convincing results. We are, therefore, justified in concluding that man and the animals generally are fundamental mechanisms, driven by the energy liberated in the oxidization of food. A mouse or a man works in much the same way as a petrol motor.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOMETIMES, I think that my middle name should have been Cassandra—"doomed to prophesy, but never to be believed." Remember the poor old girl?

For several years, I have been contending that "companionate marriage" was just a bad joke—and that the joke was on WOMAN!

Now, comes a new and brilliant young novelist, Ursula Parrot, who proves in her much-discussed novel, "Ex-Wife," that every word I wrote was true! She paints a vivid picture o the post-war younger generation.

It takes no Sherlock Holmes to discover that all the suffering, all the tragedy, all the futility and wreckage of at least two lives in this book resulted from the folly of the theory of "loose marriages."

Briefly, a young man and a young woman, both fine and wholesome and charming, utterly suited to each other, and completely in love, get married. Married on the "new freedom" plan.

Each leaves the other free to enjoy other romances, provided he or she is frank and honest about it, and will confess every infidelity. All will be forgiven and "other experiences will enrich their lives"—and all that tommyrot.

The man slips first, and the woman forgives him—but she cannot FORGET. And, when she, in a jealous moment, follows suit, the man goes mid-Victorian or aboriginal just as every normal man does, tries to strangle her and throws her through a French glass door. Total wreckage follows—total wreckage of a beautiful love.

When a man tells you that he believes in the "new freedom" for women, dear heart, just pat him on the head and say, "There, there, now!" and try not to laugh. He only THINKS he is modernistic; he is only kidding himself!

As far as his ideals of love, marriage and women go, the youngest "Modernist" is as primitive as Adam and as set and conventional as a marcel wave or a pair of china images on a mid-Victorian mantelpiece.

Theoretically, he may have broad ideas about OTHER women—but he wants his OWN woman to be loyal and faithful and as conventional as an 1830 model!

Why SHOULDN'T he? Marriage is a partnership! And, in what other sort of partnership in the world, would any misguided soul suggest that the two partners should be entitled to break their pact and double-cross each other, at any moment, "if they'll only be frank about it?"

LOVE is built on FAITH—and dies when faith dies. It's cornerstones are loyalty and honor and fairness and fidelity. When you play with love, you are playing with T. N. T. Variety in love does not "enrich your character"; it weakens and coarsens and cheapens it.

If you MUST have "self-expression" and "experience"; if you MUST "live your own life," stay single! Don't get married and mess up somebody else's life! And, when you find love, keep it clean and fine and fair and beautiful—or let it alone!

How Whiskey Comes In

It "Pays Its Way"

[illegible]

WHEN a thing is for sale, those that want it and have the Money buy it.

Safe bootlegging is for sale. Those that want it make much profit from it, and, having the money, buy freedom from molestation.

WILLIAM D. EULER, WHO LEARNED SOMETHING ABOUT AMERICAN RUM RUNNING

For the information of American citizens, who may wonder, guilelessly, how all the Canadian whiskey gets into the United States we reprint here from that interesting magazine "Time," a statement made in the Canadian House of Commons by William D. Euler, Canadian Minister of National Revenue.

Mr. Euler happened to cross from Canada to Detroit on one of the rum-running boats that go back and forth as regularly as the ferryboats of old days before bridges and tunnels.

The Canadian Minister crossed the Detroit River in a boat laden with Canadian liquor, on its way to American stomachs, guided by bootleggers on their way to collect American dollars. This is Mr. Euler's picture and account of his interesting trip:

> "Minister Euler in the prow of the rum-runner with the U. S. Customs House ahead: 'Do you often cross in the daytime as well as at night?'
> "Rum-Runner: 'Oh, sure!'
> "Minister Euler: How is it that the American Customs men don't get you?'
> "Rum-Runner: 'Well, it just happens they aren't there when we get across.'
> "Minister Euler also told the House of Commons that on occasion U. S. Customs agents even assisted rum-runners to unload their cargoes. He said: 'No effort, so far as we can see, is made by the U. S. to seize any of these boats. The U. S. Customs always are notified by us an hour or two before the boats leave, and occasionally we notify them as the boats are leaving. . . . U. S. Customs officials have requested the Canadian authorities to discontinue our daily telephone notifications of clearance of liquor-laden vessels and have asked them to mail them weekly notifications instead. . . . There should be more convincing proof that our neighbors are doing all they can to help themselves.'"

Nobody will question the sincerity or truthfulness of the Canadian Minister's statement. He simply tells you what HAPPENED.

This interesting comic opera picture of American "prohibition enforcement" will interest President Hoover whose commission is investigating and seeking to learn what is the matter with the Volstead law.

In the first place it WON'T WORK.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—Thoughts while strolling: Rarely see children in Child's. George Gershwin's chin. Sign: "Skintherapist." The Fifth avenue doorman who looks like Will Rogers—and chews gum. The white-haired old three-card-monte king—who is now a street corner salvationist.

Sinclair Lewis' freckles. Swank motorists who call gasoline petrol. Winter is here—the windows are full of Palm Beach toggery! Why is there always a society boy in the novels called Tubby? Sidney Toler, the actor, a Plattsburg, Mo., boy who made good in the city.

Comic paper influence: City detectives have abandoned derbies. The only Rolls-Royce taxi in town—once owned by Foxall Keene. And what a name for a sportman! A complete gambling cabinet in ivory in an exclusive shop. Imported from England and costing $16,500.

Hype Igoe, the sport writer. Dangling earring again. People who ride on bus tops in the rain. Bernard Gimbel. Orange juice stand sign: "Pick-up cocktails of kraut and tomato juice from 6 a. m. until noon." Buoyant flappers who stimulate such an eager delight in the commonplace.

Now that liver is up in the world socially, what's become of its lowly side-kick, the onion? And where's the 18-day diet? Gus Edwards on a flying trip from Hollywood. And, nearing 60, is winning new honors in the talkies. Eddie Cantor's understudy—Buddy Doyle.

Orchestra musicians still hanging around Broadway, waiting for something to turn up. Freely barbered racketeers who drift out at dusk for breakfast. Movie ushers at military attention. Why do they put those white crosses on windows of new buildings?

The high romance of a New York sun-down. That tingling throb presaging the gayety of a night to come. Choir boys going to vespers. Firemen tilt back chairs in front of stations. Victorias jog to the park with hand-holders. A dark plush sky gashed by the scimitar of a moon.

A wealthy bachelor who has had valets to command since graduation days says—and zip goes our standing with valets—that the only way to achieve "valet comfort" is to acquire a new one every six months.

One of my burning desires is to sport one of those tall sardonic musical comedy butlers with a hoot owl expression, stiffly crooked arms, side wheel whiskers and named Meadows. I ache to trip him up some day when the parlor is full of company.

A certain chain of drug stores killed off a popular and highly scented soap by insinuating innuendo. The soap was priced so there was no retail profit. When clerks were asked for it, they lifted eyebrows, coughed behind polite palms and indicated it was used only by highly perfumed and loose living ladies. The subtlety worked.

At Long Island dinner parties last summer, hosts and hostesses followed the California custom of serving the pre-dinner cocktails in the garage. In this way they saved the carpets, furniture and such in the house from being all spotted up.

"You are ever emphasizing your age," writes someone from Provincetown, Mass. "Lots of your readers figure you to be somewhere in the 80's. I know better." What does it matter? No one could be as old as I look, anyway.

As one who nearly mastered the march of the dwarfs from Peer Gynt's suite on the mandolin, it is cheering to know a smart new supper club is to feature an entire mandolin orchestra. Many of us have never forgiven George Ade for sounding the death knell of that instrument with his fable about Earnest, the mandolin player.

This is a bid for a lot of dirty letters, but it seems to me the fellow who invented the derby had a sense of humor.
